VIT University's Yearbook 2015 – 2016

A token of the memories created, of experiences had,
of life in college.

Dr. G. R. Viswanathan Founder and Chancellor

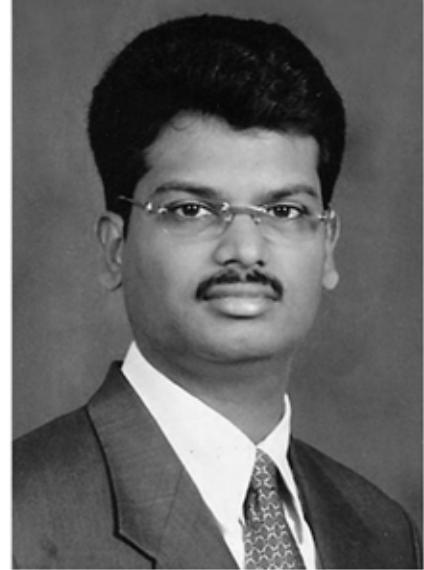

It gives me great pleasure in addressing the fifth edition of VIT University's Yearbook REWIND. College days are undoubtedly the best days in one's life. Innumerable memories created, thick friendships fostered, host of special events and lessons for life learnt. It is very often that in today's world, once we move out of college, we barely find time to go back and relive those times.

I believe that Rewind, VIT University's Yearbook has always served the purpose of helping us travel back to these days, and I am sure that the fifth edition also would do so. I wish Rewind continues to grow in the years to come and serves as a memoir for everyone who is a part of our institution.

I appreciate the effort of all those involved in the successful rendering of the fifth edition of Rewind.

Congrats and all the best in the years to come

“College days are undoubtedly the best days in one's life.”

Vice President–Administration

“We hope for students to leave here with broadened horizons and an open mind.”

Forms of communication between humans has evolved with leaps and bounds over time. But we all can agree that the most important component of communication has been language. For any emotion or thought, there are thousands of languages ready to provide apt expression. Language has truly enabled us to be free-thinking, intelligent human beings.

With such a vast campus, one can expect many conflicting views. Students from diverse cultural groups, not only from our own country, but even from foreign lands, just add to the melange of perspectives that make up this prestigious institute. We hope for students to leave here with broadened horizons and an open mind.

One of the many means we employ for students to enjoy the wide spectrum of opinions to be found on campus is through this book, through which we encourage students to use the lovely tool of language, combined with their backgrounds and experiences, to give the others a glimpse into their minds. To all readers, do enjoy the array of memories, hopes and dreams contained in this cultural melting pot.

“REWIND will serve as a chronicle for the present generation and memoir for the future generations.”

Sekar Viswanathan
Vice President–University Affairs

I am glad that the Yearbook 2015 Committee is all set to bring out the fifth edition of the yearbook, 'REWIND'. VIT as an institution has been growing ever since its inception, and a yearbook is always going to serve as a testimonial to this growth.

REWIND will serve as a chronicle for the present generation and memoir for the future generations. The effort of bringing out such a yearbook involves collecting, compiling and presenting information in an interesting and easy to understand fashion. I extend my heartiest congratulations to the team and I am sure they have done their best to make the yearbook interesting, impressive and genuine.

I wish the committee members all the best for their future endeavours.

Sankar Viswanathan
Vice President

“We are a multitude of individuals – all different in thought and action and perceptions of the world.”

In my years at VIT University, I have seen several generations pass these gates and into the world as proud graduates. Countless they may be, but each one has gone to trace a unique life path, going where fate may lead or making their own destiny. It is one of the beauties of life that though we may be a multitude, we are a multitude of individuals – all different in thought and action and perceptions of the world. No matter how unusual your perception may be, hold on to it – it defines you.

This Yearbook is a window into the unique perceptions of this University's many voices. I hope you enjoy this edition and revisit it occasionally.

I wish all the students of VIT University and all the Yearbook Committee members the best in their future endeavours.

Dr. Anand A. Samuel Vice Chancellor

As the famous APJ Abdul Kalam once said, 'Great Dreams of Great Dreamers are Always Transcended'. Every year, it amazes me the dreams that the young and malleable minds of this college can envision. One can even say that the combination of these dreams and hard work are what have created some of the greatest inventions known to mankind, starting with the wheel and coming all the way to touch phones.

Great dreams begin with an environment that allows imagination to run wild and free. We hope here at VIT that we can provide our students with the knowledge they need to support their vigour and thus provide such an environment. We hope that we can stoke the fire started by the imagination of our students.

Here within these pages lies one of the many creations that attempts to be a combined effort of the dreams of our bright students and the support this college has to offer for their enthusiasm. We hope that all students picking up this copy of Rewind find themselves nostalgic and reminiscing even years from now, when their great dreams are realized.

Dr. V. Raju
Pro-Vice Chancellor

Dear Students,

Memories are something one begins to reflect on only later in life. In youth, in the halcyon days, one is not concerned with preserving moments – a thought, an idea, a feeling – but only creating more. This is not a folly, but more of a sense of urgency that time is running out. But sometimes it is important to go back to the moment and reflect on it.

VIT University's REWIND is your unique portal into the memories of your college life. Your peers have put much sweat and toil into bringing out this edition, and I hope that some time later in life, this edition will brighten up a dull day or awaken a long-forgotten friendship.

I wish the members of the Yearbook Committee all the best in their future endeavours.

“Sometimes it is important to go back to the moment and reflect on it.”

Dr. S. Narayanan
Pro-Vice Chancellor

“The yearbook is a journey back in time.”

Every year is a new journey in pursuit of excellence. It is our constant endeavour to deliver the best of education and opportunities to the students.

I take immense pride and pleasure in welcoming the 5th edition of VIT University's Yearbook, Rewind. As the name suggests, the yearbook is a journey back in time. The time of each of our lives that we remember best. I hope as you turn the pages you are reminded of the experiences that have helped mould you as a person. One's college life consists of a myriad of experiences and emotions. The yearbook once again has made sure that these memories are preserved for you to go back to and relive. I would like to congratulate the yearbook team for their commendable work in bringing together another beautiful edition.

I wish you all the luck in life and hope that the years spent at this University will be remembered with fond memories.

Amit Mahindrakar Director of Students' Welfare

REWIND has outdone itself, yet again. Having witnessed a plethora of cultural, and technical events in our college, it is great to see an encapsulation of the massive happenings and also the simple developments of our institution. From the bottom of my heart, I congratulate the team of students who have spent a lot of their time in making the fifth edition of REWIND a real success.

Flipping through the pages filled with vibrant photographs, smiling faces, and well-written articles has made me nostalgic and taken me on a trip to the past, with a feeling of liberation. The magazine has been doing so since the first edition, and it is a moment of pride for all of us to witness the fifth edition. There is no better way of capturing college life, and I hope REWIND continues doing so, for the years to come.

Here's wishing the team and all those who participated in creating REWIND, good luck.

“REWIND has outdone itself, yet again... There is no better way of capturing college life”

Dr. Prasantha Kumar N. S.
Assistant Professor (Senior), SSL
Faculty Co-ordinator, REWIND

The motto of VIT "A place to learn, a chance to grow," embodies the entire repertoire that remains to be explored in the budding professional life of a VITian. It is certainly a place where a student has to make a conscious choice to lay a sure but firm foundation for a productive career. The contribution that VIT has made in the field of science and technology is immense globally. Each year VITians walk out of this esteemed institution, better equipped to realise the vision of our dear Chancellor, to make the world a better place.

I take this opportunity to appreciate the sincere efforts of the Rewind team 2015-16. They have worked tirelessly to bring about this edition of the yearbook. Their effort to carry on the yearbook legacy is commendable. I wish all the outgoing students the very best in their professional and personal life.

"A University should be a place of light, of liberty, and of learning."

Student Outreach Manager

365 days of 29,000 lives squeezed into a few pages. That was the herculean task the yearbook committee took on and succeeded at. A big congratulations to each of them!

For those of you leaving the university, turning through these pages will give you a little time to reflect on the years gone by. My request to each of you is to stop whatever it is you are doing and take out these few moments for yourselves. It is here that you became adults and it is from here that you now step out to take on the world. Use the time to think about what it is that you've learnt and are now taking out. And take this chance to pat yourself on the back for a job well done.

For those of you who remain, this book serves as a reminder that opportunity is knocking at your door right this minute. The opportunity to be a part of a vibrant university and move on to shape an exciting future for yourselves. Get up now and throw that door wide open!

What you hold in your hands is a very special book. No, this isn't a book where you'll learn about trigonometry or material science or electronics. This is a book where you'll find your memories. A book which will have you wanting back those heady days of your youth. No matter who you are - the college stud or the mega-nerd - the Yearbook has something in it for everyone. So sit back, relax and enjoy the ride.

But first, I would like to thank everyone who made the momentous task of designing the Yearbook possible. Sarthak's organisational skills and dedication were always inspiring, as was Abhishek's enthusiasm and tenacity. Abhijeet, Arnav, Shreya - everybody pitched in and their hard work was instrumental in the making of this Yearbook. The Editorial team had the onerous task of making sure the articles were submitted and proofed with minimal delay, which they did splendidly. The Marketing team did a great job of bringing in registrations and publicising the Yearbook. It was an honour working with everyone.

Sometimes, in the hustle and bustle of daily life we forget to step back and take a look at the bigger picture. This year's theme is keeping in line with this concept, to make you take a bird's eye view of life and contemplate about the things that are most important to you. I hope this year's edition brings a smile to your face and you have as much fun reading it as we had making it.

Joint Editor-in-Chief

When I was told that I had to write this letter in my role as Joint Editor-in-Chief, my first reaction was skepticism. In the ten or so years I've been writing, I always veer towards fiction as respite from the drudgery of what has been a very ordinary life. Rarely have I written something as myself, and it's a level of candour I'm uncomfortable with. But perhaps I should consider this letter the exception.

For however unexceptional my other achievements have been, working for the Yearbook has been an experience that requires no embellishment. Experiencing pride when you assemble as a team, getting to know each other, critiquing each other, laughing. This role has given me friends, taught me the importance of hard work (and deadlines!) and made me a little more aware of my own flaws. Looking across the table at someone and knowing that you're working towards the same goal - that sense of unity and purpose is unmatched. I'm proud of my friends and colleagues, I'm proud of the juniors we got to work with, I'm proud of all of us for working together. I'm just proud, full stop.

The Design Team has been with us from Day One, always willing to help out with ideas and perspectives and grounding us in reality. Every little piece has been put in place with careful deliberation, and the result is a visual delight. The members of the newly minted Photography team have proved their worth beyond doubt - their work shines in the Six Degrees and Club Photos sections. It's a very unforgiving task, being behind the camera, and every shot you see here has a dedicated photographer behind it. The Marketing team is the reason you probably heard of the Yearbook and have booked it - the visibility they afforded the team is priceless and I am grateful to them for it. And last, my Editorial team, who have been with me every step of the way. While I cannot fathom parting ways with the Yearbook in a few months, I am equally eager to see it in the years to come. The people whom I have worked alongside all these months will always have a special place in my heart. I am so glad I decided to audition for the Yearbook in my first year - so glad!

The book which you now hold has been assembled with love and care and attention to detail. We've spent long nights arguing over design and word count and language and nuance. We've had words about the big and small things - smiled and groaned and sometimes thrown up our hands in frustration. This book has come into being wrapped up in every single emotion we put into it. Thank you for purchasing this copy - it's made for you by people who are very much like you.

I wish you the best of luck on your journey. I hope our paths cross again.

Editor-in-Chief

Bringing to you the fifth edition of Rewind has been nothing less than an enjoyable and gratifying job for the team. This year began on a happy note for us as the Yearbook family expanded and we now have our own photography team! Over the past year VIT saw major changes ranging from the introduction of the Open Book examination system to changing the nomenclature of SMBS to SMEC and SCALE, which pretty much hurt every Mechanical student's feelings out there. But what is a world without change? Or rather a world without memories?

'We miss you Maggi' and 'The Farewell Photo booth', were undoubtedly the highlights for the team this year. We started covering events on campus and reaching out to the students more than ever before. This edition comprises almost everything under the sun. We have tried catering to the tastes of every reader and I believe that we have done a good job. This edition is a result of months of brainstorming and late night meetings at the library. Through our endeavour, we have tried our best to compile memories, important events and happenings, be it in VIT or around the globe, in the most interesting way possible.

I truly believe that nobody goes anywhere without a team and am glad that I had an incredible set of people who believed in me. I would like to thank the Design and Photography team for putting up with my tantrums, be it the colour scheme, fonts or even sketches. The Marketing team for providing their consistent support and assistance at every step. They are the reason that so many on campus are familiar with the name 'Rewind'. The Editorial team for sacrificing their sleep, keeping up with insane deadlines and coming up with incredible ideas. I would also like to extend my apologies for errors or shortcomings in any form in this edition, they are purely unintentional.

What you are holding in your hands is not merely a book. It is a compendium of emotions, feelings and most importantly memories. I hope ten years down the line when you are reminiscing about your college days, flipping through REWIND will bring a smile to your face.

Have a fun read!

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The reason why the fifth edition of REWIND is here today is due to the constant support, help and wishes of the people who believed in us and stood by us along the way.

I am extremely grateful to the Administration, Honourable Chancellor Sir, the Vice Presidents and the Vice-Chancellor for giving us the opportunity to publish this edition.

I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to the DSW, Mr. Amit Mahindrakar for helping us at every step be it publicity, sales or permission requests.

I owe my gratitude to our faculty coordinator, Prof. Prasantha Kumar for having always believed in us and for his timely support, guidance and valuable input throughout the making of the Yearbook.

I wish to thank the Registrar, the Campus Engineer, the Purchase Office, the PRO, and the IRO for their help and assistance.

The year gone by saw the Yearbook collaborate as Media Partners for various on-campus events. I would like to thank all the event co-ordinators who had faith in us and allowed us to cover their events. It is hard for me to list down the names of all the coordinators, volunteers and organisers here, but I owe my heartfelt gratitude to each and every one of you for your timely help and contribution.

Humans of New York, created by Brandon Stanton is the reason why Six Degrees was conceptualised. We are indebted to you for this section.

To every person who contributed to this edition in the form of artworks, articles or sketches, a big THANK YOU.

A big shout out to Shreyas Mudumbai for clicking the Yearbook team photo and also for agreeing to take multiple shots at various locations.

Abhinav Bakshi, thank you for being the design team's guardian angel and helping us with your valuable inputs and suggestions.

Sanjana Ravindran, my predecessor and pillar of strength, this Yearbook would not have been complete without your counsel. Thank you for being there and looking out for me and the team.

And not to forget, my wonderful team who have always had my back. If it were not for your ideas, thoughts and hard work, this edition would have been merely another paper bundle. I would like to thank each and every team member for giving their best in every way possible. We have been through a lot of ups and downs, but you lot stood by me and put the Yearbook ahead of your personal tasks. I am not sure if I would ever find such a supportive and creative bunch of individuals to work with but I am sure each one of you have a long way ahead and greater heights to attain. It has been a delight working with all of you and I wish you guys all the very best.

And a big thank you to you, if this edition brings back a rush of fond memories, a warm smile to your face and a sense of nostalgia, I can go to bed happily knowing that I have done my job.

Come, let us REWIND!

Signing off,

Manisha Raghavan

TRUMPING THE COMPETITION

Manavi Muralidhar

Before I begin, let me just tell you what a delight it was choosing a title for this article due to the countless Trump puns out there. A lesser known show called ‘The Newsroom’ once had a character proclaim that American elections are the pride of the country and the entire world is watching. Grudgingly, I would admit that the entire world is watching, though I staunchly disagree with the pride portion of the statement.

Donald Trump’s Wikipedia page opens with the lines ‘business magnate, investor, socialite, author, and television personality’. All those words seem like really essential qualities in a presidential candidate. I remember the old days when Trump’s only claim to fame was firing people on his delightful show, The Apprentice. Funnily enough, he seems to have incorporated his past in a big way into his current political agenda by going after immigrants.

Trump’s policies for his own countrymen do not fall far behind on the delusion to reality scale. For example, he has decided to ‘Replace Obamacare with affordable healthcare’. Just when Obama was starting to pride himself on supplying citizens with expensive healthcare. Rats, his plan has been foiled.

Remember, citizens of America, if you wish to be reminded that global warming is a hoax, and of course wish to have a president with a winning personality, Vote Trump ‘16!

THE SPICE IN IT ALL

Gautham Karthikeyan

The Preamble to our Constitution happens to claim India to be a sovereign secular socialist democratic republic. The words in Italics were added as amendment, or as we non-politician plebians call it, an after thought. After all, if Americans have amendments, we must not fall far behind! Now, Hindus of our country believe the cow to be holy and are against the slaughtering of the poor animal, only because their religion dictates it is a sin. Also on the list of sins are crossing any kind of sea or large water body. Not that that is a relevant belief when one must send their child to Seattle to become a software engineer so as to prevent Sharma ji's son, an electrical engineer from getting ahead. In that case, beliefs are archaic. But cows! No! They must be saved alongside the 1411 tigers. By the power granted by strength in numbers, Hindus have decided that this secular nation must ban beef. Hey, we released a 17 year old for his heinous crimes on account of being a juvenile, but banning beef is what will make all the citizens of this nation feel safe. We have always had the belief of 'Safety in Majoritarian Views'. 'Eighty percent of the people of this nation do not think you can eat beef as it goes against their religion, how dare you be the remaining 20%?'. Not like birth has anything to do with it. Yeah so let's just ban beef because we don't think our religion allows it. 'Hey so what about animal cruelty? Isn't that a more compelling reason to advocate this ideal?', asks the liberal idealist. 'Oh yeah, that too.'

BEING HUMAN

Manavi Muralidhar

Celebrities in recent times have been beacons to society. The Kylie Jenners and the Lindsay Lohans of the world have encouraged girls all over the world to be less vacuous while the Honey Singhs have taught boys to respect young women. But this year, hands down, Salman Khan has taken the cake for being one to be idolized world over.

Salman Khan's on again-off again relationship with his hit and run case has become the stuff of fables (and of course, tabloids). Salman's visits to the court have become so frequent, that his publicist at some point considered asking the Indian Government for payment per appearance. As they say, court cases are the new New Year parties.

After 13 long years of strife and struggle for Salman living life as a guilty man in his posh apartment doing movies with socially important messages like Dabangg, the poor actor was finally freed of his penance this year. He was finally deemed an innocent man. In a completely unrelated incident, CBSE had to make some huge amendments to the Civics textbooks.

Needless to say, charity done under the watchful gaze of the paparazzi has been proof beyond measure that Salman has a heart of gold. This powerful heart of gold even stood witness in front of judiciary system and testified in favour of him.

All in all, let's call it like we see it. Salman has taught us all the true meaning of Being Human.

Saas, bahu, aur NETFLIX

Manavi Muralidhar

I think that the world now should stop pretending that they aren't measuring development of whole nations based on certain 'Cool Factors'. 'Burger King in India? Wow. We are a growing nation,' or 'Free wifi on the streets? Whew. That'll solve the rampant hunger and poverty.' If it's American, we must have it. And if it's American, it is cool and shows how forward we are. Or so I gather from all the Starbucks selfies.

Which brings me to the greatest event in the history of hep, modern India. The introduction of Netflix. Our cool factor on a global scale is now over 9000. My train of thought eventually leads me to a strange place. Netflix is willing to go desi? Would they be willing to go all the way? What would the love child of the grittiest, darkest shows of Netflix and the blinding, golden Balaji telefilms sheen look like?

My mind's eye saw it all. The bahu, tossing and turning in her bed, just the right touch of bedtime makeup on her face. In her dream she's being chased by her belan welding Mother-in-law. She wakes up in cold sweat and proceeds to wake her oblivious husband who laughs off her silly dream. 'Women I tell you,' his condescending smirk says.

Dawn breaks, but not too bright maintaining the slight bluish – black undertone characteristic of say Jessica Jones. The family home is large and sprawling with all signs of wealth, but yet one hears the dismal dripping of a tap.

Saas and Bahu come face-to-face in the kitchen (where the woman belongs). They stare in silence, air around them fraught with tension. Silence is broken with a snappy one-liner by the Saas commenting on the Bahu's Puris. The Bahu's shocked face is zoomed into several times, but always in black-and-white. But the Bahu has her own store of one-liners about the Saas' past. Years of skeletons in the closet are dug up in one dramatic conversation. Witty repartee ensues from both sides. Allusions are made to a significant wrongdoing on the part of the Saas, way back in the past, but left hanging with half information and promises of revelation in the next episode. But in the heart of the viewer, they know, next episode never comes.

Saas panics at the bringing up of her past and picks up the knife on the counter. Bahu realizes it might be time to put a lid on the sass (pun intended) and try maybe to escape from the kitchen. She distracts the Saas by throwing a vase near her and runs to the street where, surprise

surprise, it's a cloudy day.

The sequins on her saree do light up the street though. The Bahu, with no place to go, falls asleep on a bench in a park.

What happens next? You call your internet guy and renew your limited 10 Mbps since you used it to binge watch 15 episodes. Welcome to India, Netflix.

CYBORG MAN

Aditi Ajay

Neil Harbisson, a colour-blind UK citizen, applied for a passport and it was rejected, because of a large antenna sticking out of his head in the photograph. And, according to the government, an antenna could not possibly be included in the photograph of a human.

Ah! but Harbisson claims that he is not human; he had turned cyborg the day his brain linked with the device permanently drilled into his head.

The appeal was accepted, and thus Neil became the world's first officially recognized cyborg. But how does a cyborg human brain work?

Neil
was born with permanent colour blindness, or Achromatopsia. With the help of a university student and an anonymous doctor, he developed what is known as an "eyeborg". The eyeborg is like a third eye that has a camera, which deciphers individual colours. The software embedded in it converts colours to sounds (according to an already assigned scale), and transmits to the user.

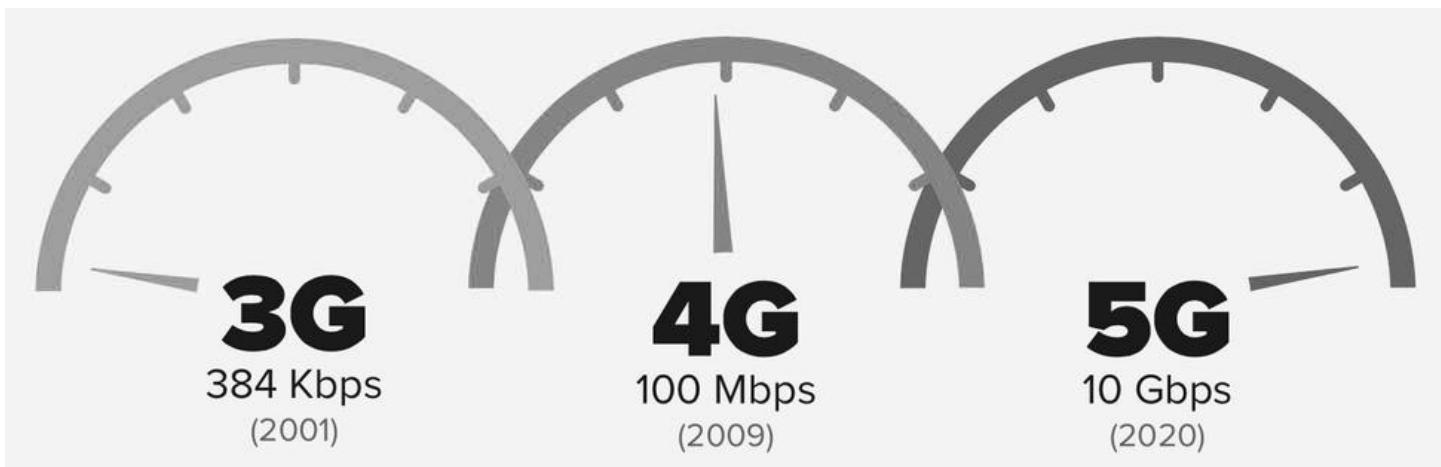

The user then can memorize each sound and associate it with colours, and therefore hear sounds.

Cyborgs do walk on this earth, just not the way we imagined them to be. Harbisson eventually established a foundation for cyborg activists, but primarily remains to be an artist; making sound portraits by listening to the colours of the faces. The world is slowly rewriting the entire concept of what makes a human, because Neil Harbisson defines the brilliant interplay of technology and mankind.

5G - WORTH THE HYPE?

Abhishek Balaji

5G or the conceptualized 5th Generation of GSM mobile networks is one of the hot topics of today's mobile industry. To go into a bit of depth, there's a little bit of background information required. The current adopted standard for mobile networks is 4G LTE-A, which is currently the fastest and the most robust mobile networks service available in the world currently. LTE-A promises a data rate of about 1Gbit/s for fixed users and about 100 Mbit/s for mobile users. Although not widely adopted, there is a huge force in the industry to switch to faster and more reliable mobile networks in favour of the Internet of Things (IoT) and the hyper connected world.

According to Ericsson, a major player in the telecom industry, "The aim is for 5G networks to be highly efficient, faster, support more users, more devices, more services, and new use cases without a corresponding impact on cost or carbon footprint. These are the requirements of this new generation of mobile communication."

5G is currently more of a misnomer than a revolutionary future technology. Some advocates of 5G see it as a consolidation of existing technology standards to create a hyper-connected network. This concept mainly aims to solve the problem of connectivity in rural/remote areas. With the emergence of the Internet of Things, the demand for connectivity everywhere is of utmost importance. The standards for 5G are tricky as of now, with a few players conceptualizing a connected Utopian world, with no connection problems at all. The problem with these standards is that 5G does not aim to solve the problems of today, but aims to solve the problems which we might face in the near future, more like 2030. 4G LTE already solves the problems associated with 3G, with many variants such as Wi-Max, Vo-LTE and LTE-A. So, 5G would aim to solve the problems which would arise in the near future and it also aims to get a standard in place which would be able to hold in the market for a long time, with only a few modifications.

Coming to the user aspects of the next generation of mobile networks, 4G is already causing the migration of data to the cloud. Super fast speeds combined with a very low latency can complete the transition of every device on to the cloud. On-device storage will be at the bare minimum and everyone will have access to terabytes of data on the cloud.

The large scale of adoption of fast and robust networks is especially important in healthcare and medicine, and providing services to rural and remote areas. Areas such as villages and small towns, which may not have enough infrastructure to support precise medical care, can leverage the use of blazing fast mobile networks to provide better access and immediate response in the case of emergencies. The Internet Service Providers (ISPs) currently install mobile towers and other equipment based on the concentration of their user base and the demographics, but with 5G, they would have to change the strategy, especially to satisfy the low latency requirements.

There is definitely a positive buzz about Virtual Reality (VR) and Augmented Reality (AR) and it's for a good reason. The ability to feel like you're in a place you aren't, the excitement of attending a conference or a concert from the comfort of your home and the endless applications in leisure, healthcare and telepresence all point to a definite breakthrough in modified reality. The only limitation today is the bandwidth. The bandwidth in most part of the world to be able to use AR/VR or even mixed reality is very less to have any live experiences. Most of the VR/AR/Mixed Reality experiences along the lines of Google Cardboard, Oculus Rift or the Holo Lens revolve around content which is offline or which isn't very media intensive. 5G has the potential to change all that.

The Clueless Bystander's Guide to Cosmetics

Adrija Subramanian

The beauty section of any department store (or indeed, our own AllMaart) is enough to strike fear in the heart of the bravest adventurer. When you pass by, an eager sales assistant will point out the million and one flaws in your physical appearance and suggest an increasingly ludicrous (and expensive) solution for each. You might walk away in annoyance, or if you're weak like me, linger and consider dropping a bundle to look like the smiling model on the packaging. And while you might give slugs or civet poop (Google it – no, wait, don't!) a wide berth, a lot of us could definitely benefit from an improvement in physical appearance, and the confidence that comes with it.

So here's your crash course in cosmetic ingredients.

SPF: SPF is a measurement of how well the sun protects us from UVB radiation. Basically the higher the SPF, the greater percentage of the UV rays that are blocked from your skin. However, keep in mind that SPF does not measure protection from UVA rays, which need a broad-spectrum sunscreen.

Comedogens: Comedogens are ingredients or substances that block the pores of your skin. This can be especially problematic if you have oily skin, because they cause the oil to get trapped in your skin and may result in pimples. Gels and lotions are less comedogenic than creams.

SLS/ Parabens: SLS refers to Sodium Laureth Sulphate and Sodium Lauryl Sulphate, two foaming agents commonly found in cleansers and shampoos. Parabens are used as preservatives in cosmetics ingredients. They can be comedogenic and dry out the skin, so high-end organic brands often don't use them as an ingredient.

Exfoliants: These are cleansing agents which contain tiny microparticles that offer some degree of "scrubbing" to more effectively remove dirt from the skin.

Exfoliants (except those marked for everyday use) should not be used daily due to their abrasiveness. They are also called scrubs or Body Polishers.

Undertones: These refer to the underlying colour of your skin. Warm undertoned people have golden/yellowish skin, and cool undertones refer to more pinkish/brown skin. Undertones are important while choosing makeup, as the same colour that looks nice and natural on a cool-toned person may look out of place on a warm-toned person. There is also olive undertone, which is characterized by having both warm and cool undertones. Olive-toned people do not look their best in pastel colours such as pink or fuchsia.

"Nude" makeup: Nude makeup is characterized by wearing subtle colours that match your natural tone to the point of looking like you have no makeup on at all. A perfect nude look is hard to achieve because it requires expert application to look convincing. Characteristically mocked as "no-makeup makeup."

IS BIGGER ALWAYS BETTER?

Abhishek Balaji

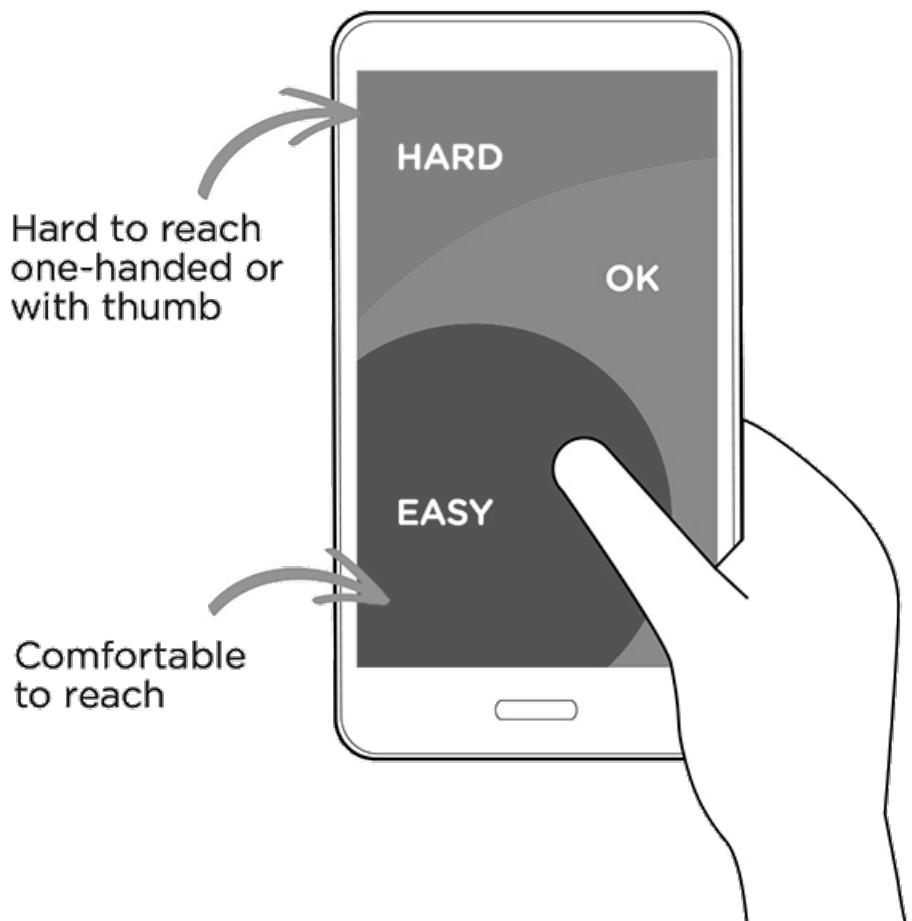

It is often said that Apple's products become famous because of the numerous leaks before the launch itself, leading people to wonder if it really is a smart PR move. When the first leak about the new smaller iPhone came in, I didn't want to believe it. But it happened. Apple has been known to be under the thumb of Steve Jobs and beloved Steve didn't believe phones should be large. Hence, the rigidity in design until the iPhone 5 came along. The iPhone 5 was much critiqued when people realised that in Apple's quest for achieving size zero in phones, the battery life and performance was being sacrificed. Nevertheless, like all Apple products, it became a runaway success. Then came the iPhone 5S, which basically added a fingerprint scanner and made everything a teeny weeny bit faster.

In a rather surprising, if not late move, Apple moved into the big boys' league, announcing the iPhone 6 and 6 plus. But now, Apple has come a full circle. The announcement of the iPhone 5 SE was met with much rejoice from the fans of smaller phones (Yep! They still exist). With phones reaching critical tablet size, pockets getting smaller and lives moving online, phone size is an interesting trend to watch. But bigger is not always better. Just ask Google.

When initially developing Android, there was a clear demarcation of devices by the screen size. But being Android, Google decided to build one common version for all screen sizes, brands, and configurations. Apple on the other hand, has only a few devices in its kitty and can afford to individually develop for each device size. Even Microsoft is trying the same method of unifying the OS for mobile devices and laptops and it worked out pretty well because of the tight integration between the hardware and the software. In all this, Android devices are affected the most. With tons of devices in the market, and every manufacturer adding their own skin, Android becomes very diverse in terms of the screen sizes. While this is good in a way, large screen phones are facing a peculiar middle child problem. They are not big enough to use a tablet UI, at the same time, using a small phone's UI would mean everything on the screen is bloated up and precious screen real estate is wasted.

The obsession with large screen phones has gone to such a level that, Apple's largest phone, the iPhone 6S Plus has a dedicated one handed mode, which basically uses only half the screen so your finger can reach all parts of the used screen space. This feature is making its way onto windows phones as well, so this problem is not going away soon.

So, while the early builds of the next flavour of Android candy seems to account for phablets, we will still have to wait and wonder, "Is bigger always better?"

Google I/O 2015: The biggest developer conference of the year!

Developer conferences in today's generation have become a trend amongst all the tech giants. They now act as the manifest of a Company. The purpose of a developer conference is to contrast the technical breakthroughs that they have achieved in the past year and to give a picture about the next generation technology.

Google being the coolest of companies, because of its expansive, aggressive and versatile nature, happens to be one of those companies which can literally affect an individual's life to a great extent irrespective of his financial as well as his physical position, conducts its annual conference gigantically, stuffing in every minute detail that one expects and every detail that one doesn't expect from a technical fest; attracting developers, companies, tech enthusiasts as well as non-developers having Googliness, from around the world to a two day conference, every year.

Started in 2008, Google I/O is now the Sunburn of Developer Conferences. While the term I/O refers to the standard notation for 'Input/Output', it is also interchangeable with 'Innovation in the Open'. Google I/Os since beginning have always grown and amused people with the exciting promises in the field of technology.

Google I/O 2015 was held at the Moscone Center, the largest convention and exhibition complex in San Francisco, with the theme: 'Here's to what you build next', welcoming over 6000 developers on-site and over 2 million people on the live stream, to this conference. The two day long event started with the keynote by Sundar Pichai, the then-Senior Vice President, Products.

The keynote kicked off with the importance of mobile computing in today's world, and how 600 million users have started using smartphones in the past year. They also sent the message loud and clear, that they are not just a search engine anymore. With the growing thirst for mobile operating systems, they announced the launch of the new Android M developer preview with exciting new features and functionalities, and the world of possibilities with the Internet of Things, featured under Project Brillo.

As the day progressed, various events were organised, running parallelly, featuring a wide range of technology, mostly covered the technology associated with the world wide web and the mobile. Events were also designed for developers to imagine and use the new additions that Google has made, so that they can not only integrate them in their products, but also give a new meaning to these new technologies.

Of those, developers were specifically attracted towards the speech by the Advanced Technologies and Projects Division of Google. The then-one year old division, with the tagline 'We do epic shit', is the division from Motorola which works intensively to produce extensive outputs. They are able to visualize what is possible using technology. They presented their year's work, featuring Spotlight 360deg, Project Soli, Jacquard and Ara and promised to live up to the hype.

The two day mega conference wrapped up with smiles and ambitions in the eyes of the attendees, speakers and the organizers. Conferences like these are encouraged in today's emerging market as it helps to create a platform to properly communicate to the masses about the progress made and the vision of the company. This not only calls for developers and consumers but also to the investors, helping make breakthrough technologies possible.

STARTING THE YEAR WITH A SIXTY MILLION DOLLAR BANG

SpaceX, Planetary resources, Moon express, Blue Origin, Deep Space Industries, Orbital Sciences Corporation, Sierra Nevada Corporation and Arianespace. There's a chance you have heard about at least one of these industries in the recent past. The number of space oriented companies are rising as manufacturing of rockets become cheaper and more efficient.

SpaceX leads the race in the manufacturing of the cheap rockets. The company was founded in 2002 by Elon Musk, who is also credited as the founder of Tesla Motors, Solar City and co-founder of PayPal.

"If one can figure out how to effectively reuse rockets just like airplanes, the cost of access to space will be reduced by as much as a factor of a hundred. A fully reusable vehicle has never been done before. That really is the fundamental breakthrough needed to revolutionize access to space."

-Elon Musk

Rockets worth millions of dollars are generally discarded after its mission is over. In December the team became the first one to effectively land a rocket back after it has deployed its payload (11 satellites) into orbit. After testing Musk tweeted that the rocket was in full working condition and could be reused. Previously Blue origin too has landed a rocket back but the rocket was much smaller and the trajectory was a small one.

On Jan 18 SpaceX launched its Falcon 9 rocket carrying a NASA oceanographic satellite, Jason-3, from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. Not getting environmental clearance for a rocket landing, they tried to rocket landing on a barge located in the Pacific Ocean. They have tried a barge landing before but without success. This time they came close, very close. The rocket landed but just as soon it tipped over and exploded. The reason, as tweeted by Elon Musk was that the lockout collect didn't latch onto the four legs causing the rocket to tip over. He seems optimistic in this post though.

“Well, at least the pieces were bigger this time! Won’t be last RUD, but am optimistic about upcoming ship landing”

Well, at least the pieces were bigger this time! Won’t be last RUD, but am optimistic about upcoming ship landing. Well, at least the pieces were bigger this time! Won’t be last RUD, but am optimistic about upcoming ship landing.

Stunned by the success of this rare private space company, NASA is now letting it play with the big guns - Boeing and Lockheed Martin and had given it a 2.6bn dollar contract to send astronauts to the International Space Station (ISS). A few days back NASA signed a contract with SpaceX along with Orbital Sciences Corporation and Sierra Nevada Corporation to carry out cargo resupply missions (CRS2) to the ISS from 2019 onwards. Inspired by SpaceX, ISRO too will be designing a reusable rocket.

“A reusable launch vehicle is the unanimous solution to achieve low cost, reliable and on-demand space access. Reusable Launch Vehicle-Technology Demonstration Program or RLV-TD is a series of technology demonstration missions that have been considered as a first step towards realizing a Two Stage To Orbit (TSTO) fully re-usable vehicle.”

- ISRO

SpaceX is not the only player that is pushing itself to make us a space faring civilization. The company Planetary Resources has a long term plan to extract resources found on asteroids such as platinum, cobalt, iron and even substances found in traces on earth. If you think the idea is far-fetched take a look at its investors which include among other notable people, the founder of Google-Larry Page, chairman of Alphabet inc. - Eric Schmidt and Filmmaker James Cameron.

Small but extremely motivated private companies and teams are slowly turning their eyes towards the final frontier. Is this the next revolution after the computer and the internet? As space exploration becomes cheaper and faster it won’t be long before we truly become a space faring civilization. As Carl Sagan once said “Somewhere, something incredible is waiting to be known”

Well, at least the pieces were bigger this time! Won’t be last RUD, but am optimistic about upcoming ship landing.

OFFBEAT

We've all learnt early on that 'high', 'low' and 'friggin much' aren't always acceptable ways of indicating a measurement. It's not much of a surprise that our ancestors inevitably ran into this 65 hand spans wide nuisance too. A standard was in need. And after a lot of boring deliberations, we were gifted the metric system which along with the FPS system covers most of the practical measurements we need. However, a plethora of measuring units do exist, lightheartedly or otherwise that need to be heard.

The next time you need to compliment a geeky girl, why don't you express her attractiveness in Helens? That's right, named after Helen of Troy (the face that launched a thousand ships), this unit of beauty is defined as the beauty that can get a thousand ships out of bay. Similarly, one milliHelen is defined as beauty that can launch a ship. If you're -1 milliHelens, you just sank a ship.

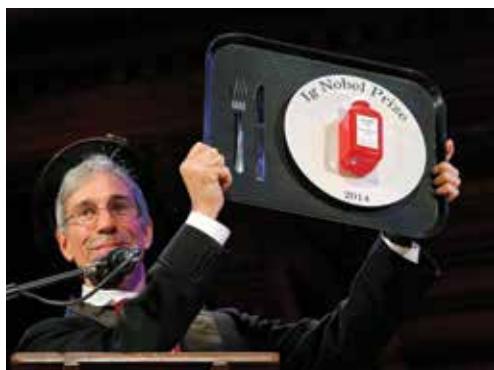

Interestingly, Bananas are used as a unit of measurement too. Hold on to your pants, fellas, bananas here are used to measure a dosage of radiation. Much like the good ol' Geiger. A beard-second, similar to the light year in concept, is the length an average beard follicle grows in a second. I personally find it hard to ignore the beard-second's existence. After all, why should the foot get all the attention?

IG NOBEL PRIZE

Krishna Mahadevan

A fear of the unknown dwells, rooted deeply in the heart of men. Man has, more often than not, turned to science to guide the way for his ventures into the unknown. Researchers try myriad ways to prove their hypotheses ranging from sheer buffoonery to ingenious ones. Now, you've heard of most of the latter, not surprisingly, because they tend to work.

For instance, have you heard of Dr. Duncan MacDougall, who attempted to prove that the human soul has weight by weighing dying people on their death beds? The conclusion? Though flawed, he estimated the human soul at 21grams. Say what you may, it wasn't bad for his time and he really deserved a prize for effort. Which is precisely why Marc Abrahams founded the "Ig Nobel" prize ('Ignoble', get it?), which is a satire on trivial scientific advances.

Winners of the 2015 edition include the Ig Nobel prize for mathematics to Elisabeth Oberzaucher and Karl Grammer for their attempt to mathematically study how Moulay Ismael, the Emperor of Morocco managed to sire 888 children during his time. What really took the cake this year was the winning entry for the Chemistry prize. The researchers invented a chemical recipe to PARTIALLY un-boil a boiled egg.

Well, at least this prize tells the researchers when to quit trying, you may think. Wrong. These researchers have often contributed much more to mankind after their setbacks. Sir Andre Geim won an Ig Nobel prize in physics in 2000 and later went on to win a Nobel prize in physics in the year 2010. We all know the lesson here, don't we?

SERVING WHAT WITH NOODLES?

Maggi

#RewindWithMaggi

Hello VITians,

It's a wet, cold morning in usually dry Vellore and there is a familiar but almost forgotten scent in town. I like being a bearer of bad news, but this time - not quite. Maggi - the sole amour of all college-going students is back in stores.

After a breakup that lasted several painful months, the fire has been re-kindled. Nestlé's only product worth buying has made a dramatic return to shelves of supermarkets and to the hearts of us desis. Turns out Maggi was not just l'affaire but le grand amour.

But should we jump headfirst into this mohabbat and forget the whole scandal that preceded it? Maggi was forcibly taken from its devoted following, to make way for Baba Ramdev's herbal noodles, stealthily bring the Swiss government down, or because the lead content was actually over healthy limits.

Could it be that us consumers going gung-ho about the whole situation - making heartfelt declarations on the VIT Yearbook's Facebook page; "Life without Maggi is like a balloon without air" was exactly what Nestle needed, to increase their popularity like never before?

Whatever may be the cause, let us not forgive and forget so easily. After this hullabaloo blows over, we see the truth - the claims were serious, and slurping down a hot cuppa might do nothing for our benefit.

How long will these little games last? Is Maggi the ex-lover that you're destined to be with?

Until next time.

COMMUNISTS IN THE FUNHOUSE

Adrija Subramnian

We take pride in being part of a modern culture. If there are two words that summarize this generation's attitude to wrongdoing, they are "Speak up!" Yet there are certain delicate facts of life that even the boldest scurry from, and one of them is telling anyone of the opposite gender when your Aunt Flo is visiting.

This is something no woman ever actually tells the other. No mother tells her daughter, "Listen, don't talk to boys about the lady problems." It's understood. If boys are around, you make eye contact with your close friend and raise your eyebrows. The words My stomach is hurting are accompanied by comically wide eyes and a shared grimace. Or simply I'm not feeling well. Chances are, monthly-friend jokes have been made both by you and at your expense, but if you've ever actually told your male friends about Shark Week, it was probably accompanied by some hesitation and muttered as an aside. It took me till Class X to tell my close friend about it. Having read the 8th standard Science textbook like the rest of us, he just made sympathetic noises and took it as a fact of life. I was surprised in the aftermath. What was the build-up about? I wondered.

Why had I magnified it in my head when the reality was that a) he knew what it was b) he knew why it happened c) I wasn't the only female he was around d) most boys have sisters/ female cousins and mothers e) he didn't think it was that big a deal.

Why does this common phenomenon, which is a sign of biology doing its work, a sign of fertility, and very central to the female experience, get brushed under the rug? The answer: decency. Even today, I wouldn't dream of openly telling my father about the red tide. I did once; he was so embarrassed and awkward I took pity on him and never brought it up again. If plans are being made to go to the temple, I simply say I can't. (The discussion about traditional religious discrimination against women on this basis is something that this article cannot accommodate right now.)

It's not really an inconvenience – most women are candid enough around their mothers, sisters and female friends. I've lost track of the times I've lain in bed moaning about that redhead aunt, and my friends have commiserated. But it's ironic that in a culture where the whole neighbourhood has no shame asking when you're going to get married or have babies – and spreading rumours if one or both of those has not happened at the right age – one cannot discuss the fundamental plumbing behind that with one's family or friends without provoking a gasp – followed by a hushing noise.

More often than not, the common man looks at Twitter and thinks, 'If this idiot is famous, anyone can be.' Oh common man. You do not need to stoop as low as the glamorous minority of society. If you ever wish to, I would like you to remember that it requires a level of commitment whereby you have to look no further than the face of a compass to name your child.

Behind every successful celebrity is a publicist who has refused to grant their employer a functional internet connection. Because when they do, pearls of wisdom such as 'If newborn babies could speak, they would be the most intelligent beings on Earth.' are passed on. The intelligent life behind this particular Tweet was none other than Jaden Smith, son of Will Smith. As the patriarch of the family, the respected actor decided to take matters into his own hands and on a talk show said, 'I was dumb as a kid too. Without Facebook and Twitter though, I was dumb in private.' Genetics works in mysterious ways.

Many young girls lost their hearts (and dignity) to Justin Bieber. In all his modesty, JB is of the firm belief that Anne Frank would've been one of these many tone-deaf teens. His optimism was accompanied by a recreation of Otto Frank's famous photo at the Frank home. If it's any consolation to him, we all truly believe that no better can be expected of him. Plus he did have to keep up with Jaden Smith.

Truly inspiring to be able to come here. Anne was a great girl. Hopefully she would have been a believer.

Speaking of Keeping Up, Kim Kardashian as we all know is an extremely fashion conscious individual. Just in case the extra face on top of her natural one wasn't assurance enough, she even tweeted her want for more Georgio Armani foundation. In case you're wondering why anyone would want that particular nugget of information, hold up. The design house's Twitter handle replied and politely informed Kim that the prestigious designer spelled his name 'Giorgio Armani'. I guess not all fashion faux pas' involve wardrobe malfunctions.

Why did Georgio Armani discontinue my favorite foundation???...

Closer to home, our own celebrities don't fall that far behind. In a stunning display of general knowledge, Kareena Kapoor once referred to Sonia Gandhi as the first lady. And then there was Sonam Kapoor, who declared that the only way you were called a good actor is if you weren't good looking. Here at home, we Keep Up with the Kapoors instead.

To all common men reading this, do not fret. Yes, you are smarter than the people behind the insensitive and idiotic tweets you read. Yes, they have more money than you do. But when the apocalypse eventually happens and Darwanian order is restored, they'll be the first to go.

THE ADVENT OF COMIC TIMING

-By Shreya Ishani

Wikipedia has seven subpages to 'Indian comedy and humour'. Enough to say it's a trend going strong. Currently we are in a humour Renaissance of sorts. While a Kiku Sharda arrest might brand us as an intolerant nation with no funny bone, the truth is we have always appreciated rib tickling. That's our mechanism to cope with a societal conundrum. "Yes, I am Chandler and I crack jokes when I am uncomfortable" holds true for a majority of 1.2 billion.

Maybe, it all started with a silent Chaplin. Indians found their equivalent in Mehmood and Kishore Kumar. Much earlier, we could credit it to witty literature comprising Tenali Raman, Birbal and a culture of court jesters.

Inculcating a culture of laughter is promoted by newspapers and magazines too. A one-amongst-us R.K. Laxman's common man or a clumsy Suppandi or a philosophical Calvin and Hobbes' subtle comedy can brighten up anybody's day. A culture that is imbibed in kids is one that stays for long. And is evidently one for all of us to see.

Hitherto, concerts across the world or our very own Riviera included only singers and musical bands. Gravitas 2015 saw VIT have its very first humour fest, RISA. Evidently, this day and age sees a hysteria associated with standup comedy like never before. They are the coolest people in town, widely followed on social media and the nation's biggest youth icons. It wasn't surprising when the government suggested adopting Net Neutrality or Free Basics it's these guys who infused sense among the common populace.

Some take potshots at our pretentious existence, some at the socio economic or generation divide and some at the helpless situation the common man finds himself in. Suddenly comedy encompasses all aspects of life and is making all the right noises. On Air With AIB with the tagline 'tragedy mein comedy' re-emphasises the fact that all grave matters can be discussed in a lighter vein. TVF's earnest videos on a youngster giving his Dad tutorials on how to use the internet is one that strikes a chord with the entire GenX.

As the middle class income increases they have learnt to splurge like never before on an entirely different sort of recreation. Dance, drama and rock shows aren't just all. We pay to have a guy take digs at us. The Bengaluru pub culture has seen Kenny Sebastian become an overnight celebrity. The internet culture has given birth to countless others. Russell Peters videos went viral with YouTube coming in. While Biswa, Kanan and the EIC people have social media to thank for making them such huge sensations, many like Nitin Gupta and Papa CJ have had their gigs in various cities in India and abroad which earned them all the fanfare. Engineering grads are now giving up lucrative careers to pursue an unconventional career in comedy. 40+ CEO Atul Khatri was rated by CNN-IBN as one of India's top 20 comedians. It's the infamous roast that's gotten two mainstream actors more audience and fan following than their movies ever did.

Comedy isn't limited to the idiot box airing a pompous Great Indian Laughter Challenge or countless others that seem to have followed the trend. Courtesy CNWK, Kapil Sharma has become a household name.

Weekly soap operas like Sarabhai Vs. Sarabhai and Hum Paanch with their brilliant script writing and punchlines have left an indelible mark on Indian audiences. Some of the highest grossing Hindi movies belong to the comic genre. It's money minting and has given rise to a franchise like Golmaal and actors like Johnny Lever and Rajpal Yadav.

When all has been spoken, it seems fairly unfair to exclude the Rahul Gandhi favourite 'Women Empowerment.' So here we go! Aditi Mittal and Neeti Palta are leading the standup scenes. Nidhi Bisht among others heads the YouTube videos stage. The cheerful Bharti on TV sets has proven that there's more to women than the damned glycerine job. And the raucous Archana Puran Singh has proven that women can do as good a job as their male counterparts in manufacturing squawky laughter.

Satire, roast, dark, insult, deadpan, mockumentary and cringe comedy are all genres being explored. Having said that this is a golden period for the comedy set. The giggles shall only get louder from here!

SHAMAH

Manisha Raghavan

The small gully which leads us to our all-time favourite 'Student Limra' now houses a new restaurant - 'Shamah'. This new eatery which opened at the beginning of this year has already managed to establish a loyal fan base. This place serves burgers, pasta, naan, sandwiches, chat items, mocktails, desserts and what not. A step into the establishment and you find yourself in a very suave ambience. Interiors done in the tones of red and black with a capacity to accommodate up to 40 people, this sure is the place to go next time if you are planning for a birthday treat. It is aesthetically done and gives you a sense of visiting a fine dine place, yet it does not burn a hole in your pocket.

To start off with, ensure you order a plate of Cheese Corn Balls for the starters. The melting of the cheese in the mouth is a heavenly feeling and before you notice, the plate would be empty. The Jalapeno Poppers are also pretty good, but I would any day order two plates of Cheese Corn Balls over the Poppers. With a variety of options, you are bound to be left confused and gaping as to what to eat. If you are in the mood for some Italian, I would suggest you try the Alfredo pasta with vegetables. At Rs. 210, your lunch and hunger pangs are dealt with. For those of you who aren't really keen on wrapping it up with a single dish, try the Burgers along with some mocktails. For vegetarians, the Cheese and Broccoli Burger is the best bet at a measly 110 bucks, while the non-vegetarian regulars swear by the Lamb Burger. For people willing to indulge in some desi swaad, there is never a dearth of breads and some Paneer. People who have a thing for food which has a smoked flavour to it, the Singapore Noodles are a must. This should be avoided by people who cannot eat a dish which has a tinge of smoky taste. The quantity was pretty generous and one serving should fill you up. Also, the Stroganoff is a dish all the chicken lovers order without blinking an eyelid.

During one hour breaks, come here to grab a bite of the sandwiches. It is a healthier bet and is pretty filling. The service is a little slow and the place gets crowded during peak hours usually, so make it a point to reach the place a little early in case you have plans post the lunch. Also, as ironical as it gets you wouldn't have to forgive yourself for spending money here as it is worth every dime.

If you feel gluttony and have a decent amount of cash with you, I would straightaway instruct you to head to this place and treat yourself.

BERRY'S BISTRO

Nitesh Agrawal

The development of Vellore as a bastion of fine food is rather slow. When it comes to food, I would say there are only a few options; but, while on my way to the college from the fort my eyes were captivated by this fine dining place, 'Berry's Bistro', being a food lover, I couldn't resist trying it out.

The Bistro is situated near the Green Circle, so near the fly-over yet it seems far away from the bustling town. The place is quiet and with light music playing in the background. Generally, reservation is not required, but, the rather small eatery is maxed out to its capacity in the late evening, so it is advisable to make a reservation to dine in then.

The menu is rather limited with not much options to choose from, but whatever they have in their menu they have perfected those. The food is of great quality and tastes good. It is a strict no-no if you are in the mood for Indian food. The food that they serve is well presented and barely looking at it is enough to make you salivate. Needless to say, the taste is awesome too. I was a little disappointed in the tempura fried cottage cheese (the dip was awesome though; the pasta, the aloo tikka chaat, the apple & bee mocktail and the blueberry cheesecake were incredible. A must try would be the walnut Brownie Sizzler, it was breath-taking, it melts in the mouth and tastes perfect. As long as you don't go there during the High-Tea time (4:00 to 7:00 in the evening), as the short menu is even shorter and nothing on the menu is worth it, you are good to go and will have an unforgettable experience.

Although the eatery disqualifies its own name, bistro, as it is not inexpensive; it actually qualifies the content of the wall posters, the food there would actually tickle your taste buds. I strongly recommend giving it a try, provided, money is not a concern.

MUST TRY

Walnut Sizzling Brownie, apple and bee mocktail

We were sitting in front of Papa John's, and all of a sudden I shouted, "We got to go somewhere this weekend break!" My friends not able to comprehend it, voiced back in chorus, since we were actually having a serious talk, "What?"

"Everyone is going to pondy! We should be out there having fun and not douche-bagging this weekend."

As my argument made total sense, we started our research on all the possible places where we could go with the last minute planning. Not to forget that last minute planning also includes taking permission from our parents, answering them all sorts of questions related to the trip with probable disallowance.

YELAGIRI HILLS

Abhinav Das

Yelagiri it is.

We had to cancel our trip as one of us fell sick. However on the scheduled day, still with the exact amount of enthusiasm in each on us, despite the fact that one of us was sick, the plan got live again, since this place was very much appealing at that moment.

So, in the next thirty minutes, we were looking for a bus to Yelagiri. Bus is the only sensible mode of transportation to Yelagiri from hostel, unless you own a four wheeler, which is always the best choice for any road trip to the hilly areas. It was a three hour journey to the lower part of the hills, which looked like an Indian suburban, yet a village marketplace with loose stretch of residential builds. Regular buses at intervals, took us uphill. We got a scenic view from the uphill road with a moderately cool breeze ventilating the not-so happening crowd in the bus.

Anyhow, Yelagiri greeted us with random attention drawn towards two arenas placed in front of each other. The first one is a Lake Park and the other is Nature Park. If you Google up, you might find other places as well, but honestly, 'Temples' are not really the place for college kids, especially when you've come out to get some fresh air. As we entered the first lane towards the Lake Park, we moved across a sea of restaurants as well as props stalls selling all the stereotypical kids' stuff.

So, the Lake Park, known as the Punganoor Lake Park, has a walk through entrance with Children's ride along the side. The path leads to a Lake side set-up having multiple food stalls offering breakfast. It was lowly populated by students though, more by local tourists probably from Chennai and Vellore. The main attraction of this Park, as the name suggests, is the Lake. They provide boating experience with charges apart from the entry free.

Opposite to the Lake Park was a nature park. The nature park however gets a heads-up because of its scenic setup and above averagely maintained parks and structures. The park is stretch over a considerably large space, a perfect picnic spot, suitable for spending quality time with friends and family. The main attraction of this park includes children's sub-park (we actually sat on the swings and rollers), fountains and an isolated mini cottage.

All in all, Yelagiri is a single-day trip spot, so obviously it cancels out all the fancy hotels and inns, no matter how attractive their offers may look. It has much to do with the people accompanying, and not the place, preferable for the enthusiastic first years. Positively, photography could be a potential motive of your visit to Yelagiri Hills.

TALAKONA FALLS

Ananya Kar

So if you find yourself wondering what you want to do during the weekend one Friday night, because obviously your courses have gotten the better of you, I suggest a quick getaway to Talakona waterfalls in the Chittoor district of Andhra Pradesh. The four-hour road trip of nearly 130 kms is surely worth the scenic beauty that you'll encounter at the end of your journey.

When I decided to go with my friends this January, we left at around 6 am in the morning (yes, that early!) and reached near Talakona at around 10 am. After freshening up, we began trekking to the waterfall, following our guide and the sound of the waterfall wherever we could of course. On the way we had the pleasure of viewing several hills and flora covered valleys. At the end of this slightly strenuous trek, we reached the base of the beautiful waterfall. Thereafter we spent the rest of our afternoon climbing to the top utilizing the extremely tricky make-believe staircases and then getting drenched under the cool and clear waters that Talakona waterfalls had to offer us, which was nothing short of an acupuncture treatment where instead of needles, you're showered with ice cold droplets that fall from a height of 82 meters. Trust me when I say that enjoying the purity of these waters will really be appreciated by any student who knows the harsh reality of the hard water we get in Vellore.

As the waterfall is officially a part of the Sri Venkateswara National Park, a fair word of warning to those afraid of animals, the entire region is thoroughly populated with monkeys who unabashedly approach you and snatch your belongings, amongst other animals that are known to inhabit this area. For avid trekkers and campers, the wilderness that surrounds the waterfall is a wonderful place to spend the night, gazing at the stars and sitting around a campfire, singing songs just like they do in movies! And for those who need to pray for their upcoming exams, there is also a Shiva temple rumoured to be nearly 140 years old, so a visit there would truly help you get in touch with your cultural / religious side.

So for a day's vacation to Talakona, you need to be prepared with the following items: a proper pair of sports shoes, because you can't trek in slippers, sunscreen, a change of clothing, plenty of drinking water and/or fluids and sufficient cash for other purposes. (I would suggest you carry around a thousand rupees with you, but it may vary on the basis of your choice of transport, which could be around rupees 300 to 500, emergencies etc.) Optional items include speakers, guitars, sports equipment along with your sparkling personality, obviously and maybe a selfie stick or a high-resolution camera, making sure that they have waterproof coverings to keep them safe.

This waterfall is one of the few places that is a perfect mix of both scenic beauty and adequate fun that any college student requires, especially at an affordable budget, which can make it a truly memorable experience to have, even if it's just for one day.

Pondicherry

Aarti Susan Kuruvilla

Every teenager comes to a point in the year where they feel the need to get away from life as a student – the books, the teachers, the rules, the exams, the stress. As clichéd as it may sound, a weekend by the beach is a sure shot way to destress and rejuvenate. And what better beach destination than Pondicherry?

In just two or three days, it is possible to completely satisfy the need to spend long hours on sandy shores, either frolicking in the water or just listening to the breaking of waves against the shore.

Rock Beach, also known as Gandhi Beach or Promenade Beach, is located in the heart of Pondicherry and is a favourite amongst tourists for the long, scenic walk. This beach is ideal if you love the sound of the sea and the smell of the salt. On a hot, sunny morning, or a cool, windy evening, this beach is a great place to relax.

The beach adjoining the Le Pondy resort is a great place to spend an afternoon. The waves are cool against the heat of the sun, and one can spend hours jumping, kicking and dancing in the water. The beach is huge, and a long walk along it is a must.

Auroville proclaims that it aims to be a universal town where everyone can live in peace and harmony together. Leaving aside the spiritual enlightenment that some gain there, it is a pleasant place to spend a couple of hours, just taking in the fresh air and enjoying the view.

Café Xtasi is an eatery one definitely shouldn't miss. The pizza is absolutely delicious and although it errs on the expensive side, the food is definitely worth it.

God's Own Country

Gautham Karthikeyan & Aditi
Ajay

Kerala, or as we fondly call it, 'God's Own Country', is a beautiful bountiful state with greenery everywhere. As is characteristic of any place with a soulful vibe, Kerala has its own inimitable twist of culture, practices and ethnic inclinations prevalent among its inhabitants. One thinks of Kerala and the picture that springs to mind is one of serenity, one of overwhelming calm and tranquil. The calm lagoons gently lapping up against the shores, the hordes of a variety of birds flying up across the orange-red sky, the sun at the brink of descending beneath the horizon, metaphorically almost, pulling the curtains to the bustle of activity.

For a country like India which boasts of a wide spectrum of cultural inclinations, Kerala is truly befitting. The culture in any place is defined not just by the reach of art, but also by various practices in use. The traditional art form of 'Kathakali' is just a single sufficient example of a standing testimony that Kerala scores high in this regard. The people are very passionate in all their endeavours, be it working for a social cause or for say something like organising a bandh too. The simplicity of the masses is very heartening and makes one feel at ease instantly. The highly successful tourism industry is indicative of how much this beautiful place has to offer. Another very gladdening feature regarding the people of Kerala is the healthy secularism in practice. It is only natural this land with such a favourable share of resources in the form of clean water and suitable weather coupled with good people, has the highest literacy rate among all states.

The local music scene has been thriving since the late 70s. Not many know this - one of India's first and most successful rock bands ever, 13AD, started out playing at a restaurant in Kochi. The real game changers came about at the start of the millennium, when bands like Avial and Evergreen rose to fame with their eclectic style of music. The recent years have seen bands from Kerala gain popularity like never before. A fusion music revival of sorts, with multiple ensemble bands ruling the local scene, Kerala rock is at the brink of an indie upheaval. Forget about Yesudas for a while, music in Kerala is liberal and fueled by the anger of the Malayali youth. Bands worth looking up are - sounds, set it to a rock rhythm and create music that is clever and meaningful (called temple rock).

Avial - The name literally means a mix of vegetables. They use Kerala's folk and temple

Down to Earth - This band re-imagines folk songs played during festivals, making them angst and fierce. Pair that with the lead singer's smoky voice and you have a band full of emotion and depth.

Thaikkudam Bridge - The Kerala music scene is incomplete without this 15 member band. In less than three years, this fusion band has held concerts worldwide, bringing more fans to Malayalam folk. Their song, Fish Rock, is an ode to all the varieties of fish available in Kerala, set to the accompaniment of an electric violin.

The food is a very important element of the day-to-day life of a Malayali. A typical Malayali's life begins, traditionally, with a cup of black tea (called 'Kattan chaaya' locally). The breakfast usually has rice as the core ingredient with coconut being an almost ubiquitous element. The roadside shops can be seen serving piping hot puttu, dosa and idly to the few hundred people who queue up early in the morning on almost all days of the week. The mid-morning tea-break in all places of work is essentially spent in consuming a glass of tea along with a banana fritter. A Malayali eats a heavy lunch. The welcoming waft of biriyani is irresistible around lunch and one has no choice but to tuck into generous helpings of it and indulge. Dinner is again rice based. The very many places in Kerala are famous for their own indigenous versions of any dish. The Kozhikode and Kannur districts, for example, are a foodie's dream come true, with racks and racks of fresh hot halwa and piping hot 'Thalassery biriyani' waiting to welcome you. The food indeed forms a very substantial element in the life of a Malayali.

What to Wear?

Aruna Muthukumar

When the rest of India is dressed in woollen scarves and leather jackets, VITians continue to wear cotton kurtis and oversized tee shirts to beat the blazing heat. So what is the latest trend among the ever so pretty girls of VIT? As versatile as they are, they dress up in everything from baggy boyfriend shirts to elegant cotton anarkalis.

The boyfriend shirt: Baggy checked cotton shirts or oversized tee shirts paired with skinny jeans give a casual look and are perfect to beat the heat. The only thing more comfortable would be to wear it with legging and sports shoes or flip flops.

Kurtis paired with leggings: This is one of the most common yet comfortable outfits seen across campus. Cotton kurtis are easy to maintain and also super comfortable.

Semi formal shirts: Another emerging trend is semi formal printed shirts tucked neatly into skinny jeans.

Sheer tops: These have been in fashion for quite some time now. But the trend seems to be dying out even though the streets of Bombay are still packed with a huge collection of sheer tops in different prints.

The bold and funky: These are rarer than the other styles but girls who can pull it off look like they walked right out of a fashion magazine.

Pairing a plain tank top with skinny jeans and chunky jewellery, be it colourful bangles and bracelets or metallic chains with funky pendants, gives a bold look.

Scarves: No. I am not talking about warm woollen scarves. A VITian might own those but will never bring them to ever so hot Vellore. I am talking about georgette scarves with a variety of prints. Some girls like to keep it subtle while others go for bolder prints and yet others even for neon. These can be paired with a simple top. But overlapping prints might be a very bad idea.

Palazzos: There are the by far one of the most comfortable yet trendy outfits! They can be paired with a variety of tops. But personally, I find that wearing it with a tank top or a well fitted top makes the best outfit.

Ripped jeans: When I was younger, my jeans were thrown out if they got ripped. But now girls prefer to buy them that way or rather even rip it by themselves. Ripped jeans along with casual tee shirts or shirts are one of the most typical outfits of college girls but this trend is not very popular in VIT.

Among the girls who are reading this, I am sure that at least half of you would have tried all of these outfits at some point of your journey in VIT, if not, better late than never.

FASHION RECYCLED

Adrija Khan

It's not fair. The Jennifer Lawrences and the Deepika Padukones and the Bradley Coopers of the fashion world think they can debut new fashion trends every day. So one day everyone is running after flared jeans, and the next day they are hankering after skinny jeans, and before you know it they are ripping off their denims to show some skin. Taking inspiration from Sonam Kapoor, you stacked your cupboard with pep-lum dresses but the world has already moved on to palazzos and culottes. So, does the fickle fashion industry give you nasty thoughts about the old clothes in your wardrobe? I'll tell you what to do with them...recycle them. Yes, you read that right. Recycle your old, boring attires and make something totally fun, quirky and new. Here's how -

Jeans - Take your old denims and roll it up to make it of your desirable length (either capris or shorts). Make a broad cuff. Take studs of different shapes and sizes. Stick the studs on the cuff and voila! Your old denims have a complete new makeover, that too without tearing any holes into it.

Fringe - If you have been wearing the same old tee for too long, then it's high time you give it a different spin. Take an old oversized tee and cut regular strips along the base of the t-shirt. There, you have a new fringed top that's totally hot on the fashion map.

Tote - Using the old handbag over and over can be boring. Make your own tote bag instead. Take your old t-shirt and turn it inside out. Cut off the sleeves. Then cut the neckline area into a slightly oval shape. Next, cut slits from the bottom of the t-shirt, both front and back. Now, take a pair of the strands formed and tie them into a knot, thus closing the holes. Turn your t-shirt inside out, and there you have it. Your own hand-made tote for carrying the books, cellphones, sunglasses or anything you want.

Gift wrapping - When you have a friend's birthday coming up, don't just think about the gift...think about the gift wrapping too. Instead of the boring wrapping papers, introduce an old stole to pack the gift in. You can also adorn the stole with ribbons and beads. It makes for an innovative present besides adding a distinct, personal touch to your gift.

Peter Pan collars - The Peter Pan collar is a timeless classic and adds unexpected pattern to a garment. Take a round necked t-shirt (preferably monochrome). Now take a fabric of a different contrasting colour. Cut out two semi-circular pieces shaped like the collar. Sew these to the neck region of the t-shirt. Now you have a new-look top that you can wear to any informal occasion and still turn heads.

Skirt - Every girl will admit that long skirts are too dull. Does that mean you'll ditch all your long skirts? No, turn them into something interesting instead. Cut off the skirt to make it shorter. However, don't cut it regularly. Make the front shorter than the back to give it an irregular hemline. Add lace detailing to the trim to make it even more attractive.

Sneakers - If you think sneakers are for children, think again. It's time to take out the old, forgotten sneakers out of your cupboard. Clean the dirt off the shoes using a mixture of toothpaste and baking powder. Now use paints or colourful pens to make new patterns on them. You can also use vegetable dyes if the sneakers are white. Who said sneakers are not for party wear?

Beaded necklace - Take an old, variegated scarf. Shred it into various thin strips. Now take each strip and slip a few colourful beads onto it. Take all the strips together, and tie them at the two ends. Your casual multi-layered beaded necklace is ready to be worn with a light-coloured tee.

Pocket - If you are about to use your old shirt for dusting purposes, think again. Take an old fabric with a vivid or graphic pattern. Cut a square shape out of it. Now stitch this fabric onto the old shirt in the form of a pocket. See? Your would-be dusting cloth is now a cute piece of clothing that can be worn again for a couple more months.

Skinny Tie - A tie is a must for every formal occasion. And for this reason, your father has handed you a plethora of ties. But if you are thinking of wearing your father's ties in this day and age, then good luck not getting mocked at. This is the age of skinny ties, so you had better get your own. Take a regular tie and cut off on both sides to give it a sleek look. Now, stitch the edges and your tie is well capable of making you look like a fashion-conscious guy of the 21st century.

Couture is not dead.

Aditi Ajay

Stumble upon FTV while switching channels on television and you will see the most eccentric television channel ever. Absolutely no commercials, and a continuous run of strange, bordering on nonsensical short films that seem to advertise products.

The fashion industry is subject to a lot of flack in today's contemporary society. The overly provocative dressing and the objectification of the models have led to the notion that the industry is not designed for the commoners. The art of high-end fashion is dying, and for most part, losing its glamour.

Haute (pronounced as "oat") couture is the term for high-end clothing and accessories that are created entirely by human hand. The want for such exquisite (and hence, expensive) has lessened over the decades, but its genesis is linked with the society as a whole.

Post World War I, Coco Chanel rose to be the person instrumental in liberating women in terms of style and breaking the "corseted silhouette" image and moving on to free-flowing dresses and casual chic clothes, a trend that is now iconic. Her extensive involvement in dressing led her to be the only fashion designer to feature in The Time's Top 100 Most Influential People of All Time.

Not all influential designers created clothing for the elite. Katherine Hamnett was the first designer to come up with slogan t-shirts, a style that is now a staple in every college student's wardrobe.

Fashion is an art form; it is expressive and considerate. Clothes and accessories are direct consequences of a particular event in history and the evolution of fashion from a basic human necessity to what it is today, an eloquent and brilliant art that inspires all is something that should not ever be discredited.

That's all.

SIX DEGREES

I was never able to wake up on time. So we came up with this plan to get our mattresses outside on the corridor and sleep there, just so that every morning the security guard would come wake us up on time.

There is immense diversity in VIT. So the funniest thing that has happened to me around here is, a lot of people mistake me for a foreigner, and then talk about me in languages I understand. I listen and enjoy it, and before I leave I subtly let them know I understood all that they said.

What is the most important lesson you've learned after coming to VIT?

I'm from Chennai, so throughout my life I've had this bad impression of people from the North. After coming to VIT and meeting so many North Indians, some good and some bad, I've completely broadened my horizons on that front.

Any advice for your juniors?

The most important piece of advice in VIT - Stay busy. The first couple of days when you're free are great, but you eventually miss being outside when everyone else is busy going for meetings and events and such. You really savour your free time if it's rare.

How did you guys meet?

We were in the same chemistry group.

(Each of them in unison)
I did everything.

(pointing at each other)
YOU didn't do anything.

How did you guys meet?

Our teacher didn't allow us to enter the lab so we just sat outside and the three of us connected.

How was first semester?

It took us more time to get settled than we thought but now it's cool.

What is the one unexpected thing that happened?

The mess food is much better in this sem. The faculty members and infrastructure here is amazing. They gives us so many opportunities.

The most fun experience?

LIVE was fun! They gave a platform for 1st years to perform.

Is this your first time in Tamil Nadu and what has your experience in VIT been like?

This is my first time in the south, yes. About VIT I should say I've been getting a lot of exposure here since the college is indeed a cultural mix.

How do you like the South Indian food?

Punjabi food has a lot more spice and it appeals to me the best. So no Idli Dosa for me,

You say you've travelled quite a bit. So please share a few of your experiences.

Travelling is an important experience for me. I have been to Dubai and several other places but the trip that really taught me the importance of travel and the value it adds was my trip to Egypt. Later this year I plan on going to Greece so I'm excited about that!

What all have you learnt after coming to VIT?

After coming to VIT, I've learnt how to live, how to be happy. I've learnt culture from others and from different diversities. After B Tech, I want to go on a world trip, a road trip.

What is the weirdest thing that you've seen/experienced in VIT?

There was a monkey in the carpentry workshop doing something.

The shirt I'm wearing is from an NGO I've been working with for a year now. We're not a VIT chapter, but we've hosted three events so far. The best part about working for this NGO is that you get to interact with a lot of people – you learn what kind of dreams and aspirations people from rural backgrounds have, and you learn about the ambitions people from an urban background have, and how stressful their life is.

So do you come often here for Maggi?

Yes. This is the best Maggi on campus. I've been having it everyday. There are loads of other places, I know, but this Nescafe just makes it taste different. You can tell the Akka to add more water if you like, or less masala. It's like customized Maggi.

We love hostel! We live in B block and it's the best. But my friend over here is never in her own room. You'll have to search in all her friends' rooms to find her. We also like roaming around and hanging out.

I was under a lot of pressure in the first semester. Then came the clubs and chapters, and I didn't go for the recruitments and auditions, because there was so much to do. After coming here is when I learnt to be patient, work as a team, and learn the way I want to.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY ICE-BEE!

Shreya Ishani

14BIT0219, Nishtha Painuli from Dehradun is an international figure skater. She stood fourth in the Asian Games at Hong Kong in 2014 and won an Olympic Spirit Award at the Asian Games at Beijing in 2015. Meanwhile, at the national frontier she's won three silvers in her two years in college. She alongside her cousin Shrey Painuli, has crossed Khardungla at Leh, Ladakh which is the highest motorable road in the world in 2010. She's been juggling the ruthless world of sports and academics for fairly long until recently when she's almost decided to give up on the former.

"Happy Birthday Icebee", read the icing on her birthday cake. "Why icebee?" I asked.

"That's my nickname. I am a figure skater."

"What's that?"

"It's one of the those relatively uncommon sports. You skate on ice. The skates have blades as opposed to the regular skates."

So you are a National level figure ice skater?"

"No, International."

I gasp. I was taken aback. Amazed that the girl who does laundry right next to me every day is such a star. And yet she never ever throws a tantrum or hogs the limelight.

"So where all have you been to?" I ask. A little curious. A little star struck.

"I have trained in Cambodia and then participated in an ice show there. I represented India at the Asian Junior figure skating challenge in Hong Kong, China and Thailand and the World Trophy in Phillipines."

"Nishtha, you need to tell me your story", I bug her as we sit down to have lunch.

"How did it start?"

"My father holds a world record in skating. He's the one who got me interested in this unconventional sport when we went to an ice skating rink in Shimla.

Until then, I was into roller skating. I was really fascinated by the ice. Then, I went for the Nationals. Although I lost there, but my journey had just begun"

As I got intrigued by her story. I had doubts pop up in my head. "Isn't it difficult to practice such a sport in India? How supportive is the government and the Sports Ministry?"

"It is. The training became tougher with the only artificial Olympic size ice rink in Dehradun shutting down. I have written countless letters to the Ministry, but it's fallen on deaf ears."

So will you pursue this further?

"No", she lamented. "The foreign coaches cost a bomb. Add to it, India lacks infrastructure. The sponsors seem to be more interested in funding a rather mainstream sport like cricket. It's difficult for us, a career in figure ice skating isn't a secure one. I'd rather be pragmatic and work towards my engineering degree that guarantees a job. This year I have entered the Senior category. It's stiff competition there."

As she said that the twinkle in her eyes is replaced by gloom; that of unfulfilled dreams and desires. When labour, toil and hard work ain't enough. When it's still difficult for a certain someone to follow their dreams in a developing nation. Alas! Sports still is more recreation than a career. Nishtha's story is synonymous with countless Indian sportspeople who have sacrificed their passion at the altar in order to make both ends meet.

ADIDAS FOOTBALLS USED IN FIFA

These are the different kinds of footballs used by FIFA in the World Cup. The design of the balls must meet exact specifications and pass rigorous tests before they are approved. Not surprising, since the ball is the very essence of the game.

Brazuca
Brazil, 2014

- Most tested ball in FIFA history.
- Colours symbolise traditional bracelets worn in Brazil.

+Teamgeist
Germany, 2006

First World Cup ball to have only 14 panels, instead of the traditional 32.

Jabulani
South Africa, 2010

The 11 colours on this ball represent the 11 players of a football team, the 11 official languages of South Africa and the 11 South African communities.

Fevernova
Japan, 2002

The golden trigon, resembling a Japanese tomoe and the red streaks that resemble calligraphy strokes are both based on Asian culture.

Tricolore
France, 1998

- First coloured ball used in a FIFA World Cup.
- Colours are inspired by the French flag and cockerel.

Questa

USA, 1994

- The name Questra indicates USA's quest for the stars (think space exploration.)

Etrusco

Italy, 1990

- This ball was named after the Etruscan civilisation of ancient Italy. Each triad is decorated with Etruscan lion heads.

Azteca

Mexico, 1986

- First completely synthetic FIFA World Cup ball.
- Diego Maradona scored his Hand of God goal and Goal of the Century with the Azteca.

Tango España

Spain, 1982

- First FIFA World Cup ball with a mix of leather and synthetic material.
- It had improved water resistance.

Tango Durlast

Argentina, 1978

- First of the popular Tango family of footballs.
- The interconnection of curved-edge triangles (called triads) was an Adidas trademark.

Telstar Durlast

Germany, 1974

The Telstar name was taken from the Telstar communication satellite, which is similar in appearance to the football.

Telstar

Mexico, 1970

- First ball made by Adidas for FIFA World Cups.
- First football to sport the iconic design that everyone is familiar with.

Rules and regulations are something that makes a sport more interesting, entertaining and lively. However, some sports have unintentionally gained popularity due to their confounding rules. Luckily, these rules have been countered very rarely in the individual sport's history, no matter how much a fan craves to witness it.

1. Dare not not-sign the scorecard

In professional golf, the signature of the golfer is of prime importance. On failing to sign his scorecard, a golfer will be disqualified from the event.

In 1966, Pensacola Open, Doug Sanders, instead of signing his scorecard, he signed a number of autographs. Later in the press conference, he was declared as disqualified and it cost him about $25,000.

2. 20-secs and it's a foul

In Baseball, if a pitcher takes more than 20 seconds to deliver a pitch, the batter is awarded first base!

3. Rims are not warm-up friendly

During a college basketball match, no player is allowed to touch the rim during the warm-up. If they do, the player's team automatically forfeits the match.

The rule gained popularity when Harlem, Montana, Boys' high school's player shattered the board before the match. They were rewarded with an 'L' in the series.

4. Only shoe fights please

In Football, taking off your shoe and kicking the ball is counted as a handball!

5. Twitter Much?

In electric Formula Racing, the driver Twitter mentions matter! During a race, the driver with the most Twitter mentions gets to use extra power.

6. Quite a celebration

Celebrations in soccer are not very adrenaline-friendly. Players may be awarded a yellow card if they take off their jersey. Also, in 2009, a player was given a yellow card for running the length of pitch, celebrating his goal against the Arsenal.

7. You be the judge

In golf, you are allowed to point out any rules violation even if you are in your home and watching on Television and get the golfer disqualified!

Dear Self

Dear self,

For all the ups and downs in life

For all the joys and sorrows, the smiles and tears

For all the people who loved you when nobody did

For all those who came and left

For all those you left for gain

For all the bad that happened and the good you did

Only happened and will happen for a reason of its own

While only one thing remains forever ...

You, yourself ..

Never lose yourself in the quest of finding someone

Who hasn't lived your life, and not been there not done that Never lose yourself in the ray of hope of success

Never quit for you never did before

Never will you fit into the shoes of others, you only make your own

Never live the rest, except the best of you

For men may come and men may go only you love yourself forever!

What is a Writer's Block? And what does it do to you? I'm sure you've been in this situation. One fine morning, you wake up with the intention of writing something bedazzling. You want to get your creative juices flowing, you want those ideas to spill forth from your brain and onto paper. So you go eat your eggs and drink your coffee, and once you're all powered up, you settle down at your desk (or on your bed) and take out a fresh sheet of paper and a pen (or your laptop), and you start writing (or typing). At least you try to, because you just can't think of anything to write (or type).

We all have a little idea box in our brains, somewhere tucked into a little corner between 'dreams' and 'inner genius'. Sometimes, your idea box just stops working, the wheels stop turning (even if you had them oiled just recently). You might wonder why that happens. A big block of some vague, unknown shape is sitting amidst the machinery in your idea box, blocking the movement of the wheels and cogs. Hence, the machinery cannot operate and the production of ideas is completely stopped. That block, ladies and gentlemen, is what is popularly referred to as the "writer's block". And there begins our immense exasperation.

So you mutter a couple of curse words under your breathe, you stare at the ceiling for hours together, you log onto Facebook and read a couple of memes (some of which aren't even funny) and smirk to yourself. At the end of the day, all you've done is waste good time, and you haven't written that 'bedazzling' piece that you wanted to.

You start afresh, like the determined soul that you are. You're going to get it this time. But alas! The damned block is still there! You try really, really hard, so hard that your brain begins to hurt, and then, wait! What is that sound? It's coming from the idea box! All the wheels and cogs start pushing against the block, trying to get it out of the way. There's a faint 'chi-ching', as a small, vague idea is formed, and you put it down on paper immediately. You write a couple of sentences, and for just a few minutes, it seems as if the block has completely vanished!

But unfortunately, you do not get past those three or four sentences. The block is still there, and it is unrelenting! It's going to take a lot more than that to take down this bad boy. You bang your head against the wall and cry out desperately. "Is there no end to this cruelty? Writer's Block! Have you no mercy?" No, the Writer's Block does not have any mercy and it continues to sit in your brain smugly. What nerve!

But do not underestimate yourself. You're clever and you know it. After a fair bit of thumping your head against the wall, you decide to write about the Writer's Block itself! What a stroke of genius! By some strange mechanism, the pressure that the block was exerting on the machinery in your idea box caused the production of an idea to write about the block itself, and then the block vanished!

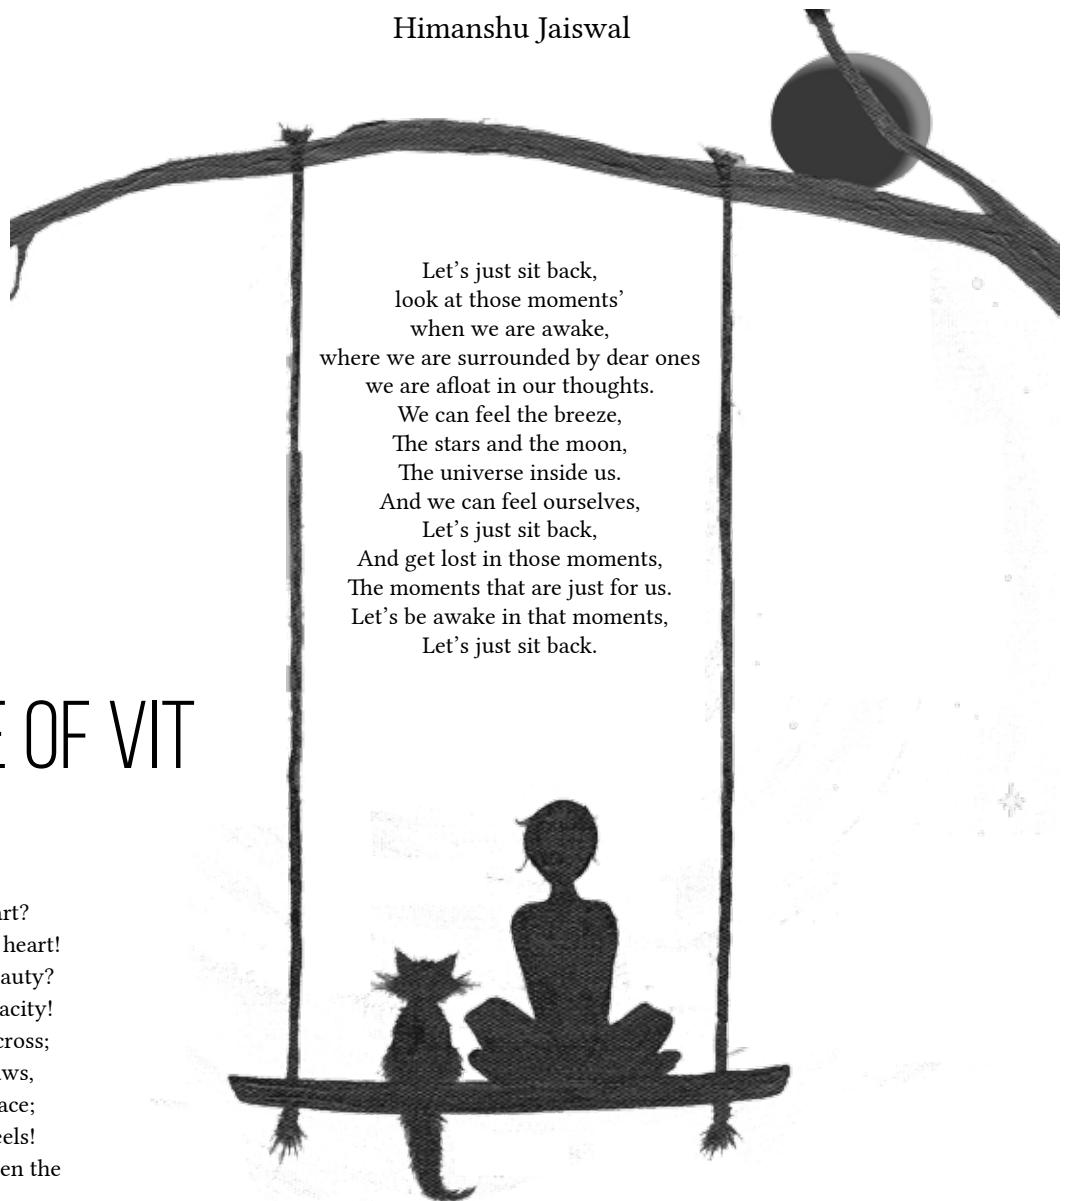

You outsmarted the Writer's Block this time. Your idea box managed to produce an idea to write about the block itself, despite it being there. But one specific idea can be produced only one time. That's the rule. What are you going to do the next time when the Writer's Block returns?

THE STARS, MOON AND ME...

Himanshu Jaiswal

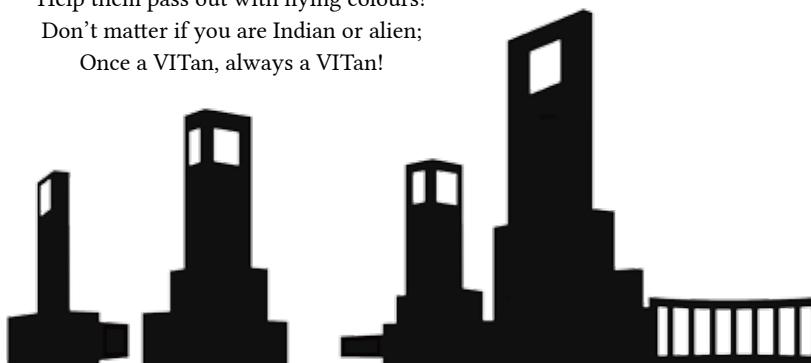

Let's just sit back,
look at those moments'
when we are awake,
where we are surrounded by dear ones
we are afloat in our thoughts.
We can feel the breeze,
The stars and the moon,
The universe inside us.
And we can feel ourselves,
Let's just sit back,
And get lost in those moments,
The moments that are just for us.
Let's be awake in that moments,
Let's just sit back.

THE ESSENCE OF VIT

Hariharan

Where to start and how to start?
When there's no boundary to its heart!
What word could describe its beauty?
An oasis driven by a man of sagacity!
Different people flow in from across;
Thrive in harmony with no flaws,
Birds and labourers sing in peace;
A home away from home, it feels!
A bunch of trains running between the fields;
Tireless trainers toiling in distinct fields,
Even those once dunce in school;
Grow with prudence in this school,
Endless dreamers, erudite scholars;
Help them pass out with flying colours!
Don't matter if you are Indian or alien;
Once a VITan, always a VITan!

Aarti Susan Kuruvilla

A single moment, a single action, a single hastily-made decision – that's all it takes. That's all it takes to sum up your life.

I won't pretend that life isn't difficult. It is. Every day holds struggle, toil and trouble. You are going to get knocked over. Things aren't going to go your way. People are going to do horrendous things.

At some point in life, you are going to feel it- you're going to feel that inexorable pull towards the abyss, that dark and empty place devoid of life. At some point, life is going to look bleak and unpromising. You're going to feel like the whole world is against you and the universe is plotting your downfall. At some point, you're going to feel like everyone is turning against you and no-one will offer you any help.

Don't give up. Don't give up. Don't relinquish all willpower; don't give in to the pull. Don't miss the silver lining on every cloud in the sky, or the stars that twinkle even on the darkest of nights. Don't let anyone tell you that you're worth nothing. Don't let grades define your intelligence. Don't let rumours change who you are.

Fight. Fight for yourself. You're the only one that can – only you understand your struggles perfectly. Only you understand how far you have come, how much further you have to go. Only you are good enough to fight for yourself.

There is a rainbow after the storm. The sun is waiting to peek out from behind the clouds. There are happier days right around the corner. You just have to wait for it.

You are unique. You are the only person like yourself. No-one else can walk your walk, talk your talk, or act your act. No-one else can be you. Believe in yourself. Your life has meaning to it. Your presence affects a lot of people – your friends, your family; people you've seen at the shops, regulars at your favourite bookstore; people you've never met before, people you've never even heard of – you affect them all. You affect me too.

Don't make hasty decisions. Please. Life is a highway. You're going to travel along some dark and twisted paths, but they won't last forever. I can't explain what's happening to you right now. I can't rationalise any of it. But just hold on for a little while longer, and you'll see the valleys and lakes that make life worth living. Hold on a little while longer, the sun will rise again tomorrow. Hold on a little while longer, I promise you're going to be okay.

MOVIES

Spotlight (2015)

The Best Picture Oscar winner for 2016 truly deserves it, and how. Based on the story of the crisis in the Catholic Church in Boston, backed by a strong cast and a wonderful screenplay, this is a must-watch on all levels.

The Room (2003)

This is famous among movie fans as 'The Worst Movie of All Time'. Produced, written, directing and starring Tommy Wiseau (who paid for it, all $6 million) it was initially marketed as a drama before it was realized that the audience considered it a black comedy. It also inspired a bestselling book.

Margarita, With a Straw (2014)

This giant bundle of feelings tells the story of a young woman (Kalki Koechlin) with cerebral palsy and how it affects her life. It won awards at the Toronto International Film Festival, among others. Make it a part of your watch list.

Jaane Bhi Do Yaaro (1983):

A dream ensemble cast (Naseeruddin Shah, Om Puri, Pankaj Kapur among others) star in this dark comedy about Indian politics and bureaucracy that is still very much relevant today - considered one of the best Bollywood movies of that era.

Mulholland Drive (2001)

This neo-noir mystery is one of David Lynch's earliest works, about an aspiring actress who moves to Los Angeles. In his characteristic style, he takes you through twists and turns that all wrap up neatly.

Deadpool (2016)

This is the origin story of former Special Forces operative turned mercenary Wade Wilson, who after being subjected to a rogue experiment that leaves him with accelerated healing powers, adopts the alter ego Deadpool. Armed with his new abilities and a dark, twisted sense of humor, Deadpool hunts down the man who nearly destroyed his life.

Matrubhoomi (2003)

The film examines the impact of female foeticide and female infanticide on the gender balance and consequently the stability and attitudes of society. Its storyline bears some resemblance to real-life instances of gender imbalance and economics resulting in fraternal polyandry and bride buying in some parts of India.

MOVIES - REGIONAL

Kaakkaa Muttai (Tamil)

It is all about the life and times of two kids growing up in a slum, who make their living stealing coal from the railway yard. Their father is in jail while their mother brings them up. The urchins have their own dreams like any other kids, and they decide that by hook or crook, they will gain entry into the upmarket Pizza shop and have a slice of it with their own money.

Bahubali: The Beginning (Telugu)

When Sanga and her husband, part of a tribe living around the province of Mahismathi, save a drowning infant, little do they know the background of the infant or what the future holds for him. The kid grows up to be as Shivudu, a free-spirit wanting to explore the mountains and in the process learns of his roots and ends up confronting the mighty Bhallala Deva!

Belaseshe (Bengali)

It's celebration time at the Majumdar residence. Biswanath and his wife Aarti have completed 49 years of togetherness and as the seemingly happy family gathers around to celebrate their 50th marriage anniversary, Biswanath declares that he has decided to finally divorce his wife. Reason? Irretrievable breakdown of marriage. Will the storm pass or will it change lives?

Court (Marathi)

Winner of top prizes at the Venice and Mumbai film festivals, Court is a quietly devastating, absurdist portrait of injustice, caste prejudice, and venal politics in contemporary India. What truly distinguishes Court, is Tamhane's brilliant ensemble cast; his affecting mixture of comedy and tragedy; and his naturalist approach to his characters and to Indian society as a whole, rich with complexity and contradiction.

Vidaaya (Kannada)

A doyen of parallel Kannada cinema with multiple National Awards to his name, Sheshadri returned this year with yet another film that impressed critics. Vidaaya handles sensitively an oft-explored subject: a man left in a vegetative state after a car accident requests euthanasia, and his reluctant wife becomes the target of a trial-by-media as a woman who is intent on killing her husband.

Qissa (Punjabi)

A beautifully-shot film set in post-Partition Punjab, Singh's sophomore feature is about a young girl (played by Tillotama Shome) who is raised as a boy by her rigid and stern father (Irrfan Khan). Combining historical realism and surrealistic elements, the film was noted by critics for its performances and unconventional storyline.

Premam (Malayalam)

Premam is all about romance and fun, though there is more to it. The life of a person going through various phases is the premise of the story. Infatuation, romance, first love, pain of separation all those emotions that we all come across in our lives are discussed in an interesting way.

NOVELS

Thriller/Mystery: Rebecca by Daphne du Maurier

Most of us know this book by its more famous Silver Screen rendition by Alfred Hitchcock. The novel itself though, has the ability to transport the reader to Manderley, the sprawling, yet slightly spooky mansion where the book is set.

Classics: Pride and Prejudice by Jane Austen

Some may scoff and write this book as plain chick lit of yesteryear, but they could not be more wrong. The book is a satirical social commentary on interpersonal relationships of the era, all while being completely relatable in the present day.

Science Fiction: The Foundation Series by Isaac Asimov

Isaac Asimov can hands down be considered one of the pioneers of science fiction, along side H.G. Wells. The entire series, while taking place all over the Universe, deals with a topic that should matter even to us mere Earthlings. Enough, no more spoilers.

Philosophy: The Fountainhead by Ayn Rand

Though critics have often called Ayn Rand's works lacking basis in reality, her principles are strong enough to believe. After all, we've all had days of hard work marred by those lacking in intelligence and passion.

Comedy: The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy by Douglas Adams

Finding humour even in the end of the world as we know it is no mean feat, and props to Douglas Adams for managing to do so. The book right from the title to the most surreal parts, maintains its comedic tone.

Graphic Novel: Maus by Art Spiegelman

Maus is a story of the biggest genocide and one of the most horrifying crimes against humanity in history: the holocaust. Art's father was a holocaust survivor and he narrates all his terrible experiences to Art in the graphic novel. Though chilling, the novel helps us truly understand the heinous crimes of days past.

Non Fiction: The Grand Design by Stephen Hawking

More a recommendation for the nerds in our midst, who, let's face it, in engineering aren't that few and far between. Though a slight warning, be prepared to feel tiny compared to the huge Universe out there.

APP S

Slack – Team collaboration

Slack has been touted as an industry disrupter in the 21st century. By presenting a nice mashup of IRCs and messengers, the app allows you to collaborate with teams large and small. The free plan lets you create unlimited teams with as many members you want. If you work in multiple teams requiring constant communication, switch to slack!

Facetune – Photo Editing

In the age of social media, what is real is not really real. It is photoshopped. Unfortunately, not all of us have the time or skills to photoshop every photo, and that's where Facetune comes in. It provides easy controls to not only trim, tuck and enhance any part of your photo, but also add filters and mess around much more with the photo.

Monefy – Expense tracker

Monefy is the simplest, no-nonsense expense tracker out there. You can watch your spending and set goals for every month. It supports multiple accounts and you can even add custom categories. Time to find out where the money is going!

My Study Life – Education

This is one app which is indispensable for any student. You can add your courses and timings at the beginning of the semester and the app will alert you of your classes a few minutes before each. You can also set tasks, reminders and holidays in your timetables.

GAMES

Plague Inc (iOS/Android)

Breed your very own disease and watch it engulf the world and decimate the human population. Designed by the CDC, this game gives a realistic viewpoint of what would happen around the world should an epidemic arise. This game is also being used by disease control experts as a board for all possible hypothetical situation.

Atomas (iOS/Android)

Atomas is a fascinating puzzle game with a great interface, which you can learn in seconds but will entertain you for weeks. The primary goal is to create an atom of the highest number by merging smaller ones. Once you get the hang of it, every free moment will be used to reach that high score. The perfect game for your spare time!

Infinity Loop (iOS/Android)

The goal of the game is to transform small pieces to make a set pattern in each level. It is one of the many endless runner games which requires you to get the highest score possible. With an amazing design and engaging gameplay, this is a must play!

Monument Valley (iOS/Android)

A beautifully designed game, Monument Valley is a surreal exploration through fantastical architecture and impossible geometry. Guide the silent princess Ida through mysterious monuments, uncovering hidden paths, unfolding optical illusions and outsmarting the enigmatic Crow People.

TV SHOWS

Casual (2015 – running)

CASUAL is a single-camera, half-hour comedy series that follows the story of a dysfunctional family trying to help each other navigate the modern dating scene. Recent divorcee Tara and her bachelor brother coach each other through the crazy world of dating (on-line and off), while living under the same roof again for the second time.

Rectify (2013 – running)

Daniel Holden was imprisoned as a teenager for the rape and murder of his 16-year-old girlfriend, Hanna. After spending 19 years on death row, new DNA evidence vacates his original trial, and he returns to his hometown of Paulie, Georgia. The subsequent events in the life of Daniel are presented as a character study in this slowly unfolding Southern Gothic story.

Catastrophe (2015 – running)

Rob Delaney and Sharon Horgan write and star in this R-rated comedy about a one-week stand between a Boston ad exec and a London schoolteacher that leads to an accidental pregnancy. When Rob moves to the UK to help figure things out, cultures clash and hormones flare as these two realize they don't know the first thing about each other.

The Americans (2013 – running)

A pair of deep-cover Soviet spies masquerades as a typical DC couple whose children, neighbors, coworkers & friends are completely unaware of their activities. At home, they're the stereotypical parents of stereotypical kids; at work, they pose as travel agents; but at night, they weave a web of confidants, lovers, dupes, and historical figures from the Reagan-era Cold War.

M*A*S*H (1972 – 1983)

The 4077th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital is stuck in the middle of the Korean war. With little help from the circumstances they find themselves in, they are forced to make their own fun. Fond of practical jokes and revenge, the doctors, nurses, administrators, and soldiers often find ways of making wartime life bearable. Nevertheless, the war goes on.

Twin peaks (1990 – 1991)

The body of a young girl (Laura Palmer) is washed up on a beach near the small Washington state town of Twin Peaks. FBI Special Agent Dale Cooper is called in to investigate her strange demise only to uncover a web of mystery that ultimately leads him deep into the heart of the surrounding woodland and his very own soul.

The Fugitive (1963 – 1967)

Dr. Richard Kimble is accused as the murderer of his wife, tried and convicted. On his way to be executed, he escapes. The only chance to prove his innocence is to find the man who killed his wife. Kimble, pursued by Lt. Gerard, risks his life several times when he shows his identity to help other people out of trouble.

MUSIC

E-Pro – Beck

Beck has been creating alternative music since the 90s, though he only emerged to the larger audience due to his Grammy win in 2015. E-Pro has the kind of beat and catchy na-na-nas that'll have you humming it at random times of the day.

Cheek to Cheek – Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers

This retro song from 1935 is from those times when actors actually sang their own songs. Astaire and Rogers were very popular in their time, and Cheek to Cheek is part of that legacy, having been covered innumerable times by other artists over the years.

Work It – Missy Elliot

Before there was Nicki Minaj, there was Missy Elliot. Work It contains the signature don't-care lyrics and epic beat that garnered her respect as one of the few females in a male-dominated genre.

In Loving Memory – Alter Bridge

This beautiful tribute song by Alter Bridge deserves mention not just for its touch of sadness, but also for the slight hopeful vibe it gives off. It perfectly captures mourning the loss of a loved one, but celebrating their life all the same.

Delicately Tuned – Karnatriix

This little-known band combined Carnatic ragas with jazz, blues, rock and funk for an experience that is both new and familiar. Delicately Tuned is off their album Namaste, and has made waves on the fusion music scene.

Walk with Me to Hell – Lamb of God

For those of you metalheads, a heavy metal number by the All American iconic group Lamb of God. Nothing like a long bath and a middle aged man growling in your ears to calm yourself after a stressful day.

Man in the Box – Alice in Chains

A slightly harder rock number, Man in the Box gives a true feeling of a slightly trapped and suffocated feeling that one feels with routine. If the lyrics aren't enough to catch your fancy, the heavy guitars will do the trick.

Mohamed Rizwan Khan Marketing Director

College is a part of life everyone looks back to cherish the moments. It's the time of one's first success, independence, first love, first break-up and of course the first job with a decent pay-check. But as every good thing comes to an end, this does too. But what stays behind are the memories. Memories to reminisce with old friends during reunions and trying to live the past, memories which are unforgettable. For all I have learned till now is that memories are the most precious thing one has, more precious than money or a college degree because it's not something which just defines your past but also designs your future, and one should always keep hold of it, relive it, cherish it and learn from it.

VIT University's Yearbook is one thing which I will always connect to throughout my life. It's been three years since I joined the VIT University's yearbook and I have seen all its phases- the rises, the falls, the moments of joy and even moments where we almost cried. I still remember the early few days when we were first years, asking around for registrations and doing publicity, me and my friends used to think that the seniors usually enjoy the fact that they have superior positions and it will be really great to one day to be like them leading the team. But as the great line says "With great power comes great responsibilities", the moment did come and did carry all the stresses a leader has to carry. It took us quite a time to realize that we were actually sitting on a goldmine and we can use our resources to expand our territory. The result was the formation of the Inframes team, which became the premier Media team for Riviera'16, featured as official media sponsors for premier events and a wide campus recognition.

At the start of the year, we planned a lot of goals which we had to achieve, and every month we used to discuss whether it was possible to actually reach it or not. There were times when questioned our conscience that whether we were moving in the right direction or not but I am proud to say this that at the end whatever challenges came up, my team was able to conquer each one of them. This wouldn't have been possible without the constant support, enthusiasm and guidance of our faculty coordinator Prof. Prasantha Kumar and my co-mates Kevin, Harita and Manikantha. I will also like to thank all my juniors who never lost hope and were enthusiastic to achieve even the impossible tasks.

I hope you all will have a great time reading this packet of memories.
God Speed
